CONFIDENCE VOTE FOR STRESEMANN

Reichstag Stands Behind German Chancellor and Against Radical Elements—Socialists Support Government

GIVEN DICTATORIAL ECONOMIC POWERS

Socialists Urge Appeal to Great Britain to Initiate Negotiations Between Germany and France

BERLIN, Oct. 8.—The Reichstag tonight passed a vote of confidence in the Stresemann Government against the German Nationalists, the Bavarian People's Party and the Communists.

A resolution in favor of abolishing the state of emergency in the Reich and Bavaria was rejected.

A Socialist motion endorsing the Government's constitutional standpoint regarding exceptional measures in Bavaria was carried.

Count Westarp created much uproar when, after he had declared the acts of sabotage in the Ruhr were justifiable acts of defence of a national duty, he exclaimed:

"We demand a breach of relations with France, with all its consequences."

This evoked cries of "war," and applause from Westarp's followers, and cries of dissent and hisses from the left. The uproar was so great when the Chancellor rose that he was unable to make himself heard for some time.

Dictatorial Powers
 BERLIN, Oct. 8.—The Reichstag adopted by a vote of forty to eighteen today, the draft bill of the authorization law asked by Chancellor Stresemann by virtue of which he would receive dictatorial authority in dictating economic measures. Bavaria, and some of the Prussian provinces voted against the bill.

Urges Appeal to Britain
 LONDON, Oct. 8.—The German Socialist leader, Dr. Rudolf Breitscheid, announced in the Reichstag today, according to a Central News dispatch from Berlin, that the Socialists were prepared to agree to the extraordinary powers the Government was seeking. He also urged the Government to appeal to Great Britain to initiate negotiations between Germany and France.

French Make Threat
 BERLIN, Oct. 8.—It is reported from Essen that the Franco-Belgian occupational authorities have presented the railway workers with an ultimatum requiring today demanding that they either agree to resume work or be expelled from the occupied region. More than 50,000 men are said to be affected by the demand.

FIND EMPLOYMENT FOR HARVESTERS

Nearly Eight Thousand Openings for Winter Work Available for British Harvesters

OTTAWA, Oct. 8.—Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Immigration, has announced that up to today, 1,714 openings for winter employment have been found for British harvesters. Of this number, 4,255 are for farm work, 2,439 for lumbering and bush work, while a limited number of places have been found in other branches of industry.

The field staff of the Soldier Settlement Board has undertaken a complete canvass of employment opportunities, and the foregoing figures are furnished by the board as the result of the first eight days' canvass. The openings for employment by districts are: Toronto, 3,000, of which 2,000 are bush and 1,000 farm jobs; Winnipeg, 333; Regina, 392; Saskatoon, 325; Prince Albert, 656; Calgary, 531; Edmonton, 2,333; and Vancouver, 130.

The canvass discloses a real demand for farm labor at $15 to $40 a month and board, according to experience, and for help in the lumbering camps at from $40 to $50 a month and board. Demands in other industries are limited. The canvass is continuing.

B.C.E.R. Employees Take Referendum On Recent Wage Award

VANCOUVER, Oct. 8.—Referendum by ballot is being taken among the B.C.E.R. and Conductors' Union in Vancouver, New Westminster and Victoria today in regard to the acceptance of the conciliation board's recent award of new wages and working conditions.

Ballots will be counted on Wednesday night of this week, when officials hope to be able to announce the results.

S.O.S. CALL TELLS OF SHIP'S MISHAP

MOTORSHIP KENECOTT ASHORE ON FREDERICK ISLAND

Radio Message Sent Out Early This Morning for Assistance—En Route From Orient

SEATTLE, Oct. 6.—The motorship Kenecott, en route to Seattle from the Orient via Alaska, was aground on a short distance south of Ketchikan, according to R.C.S. calls heard by the Seattle Harbor department radio at 12:45 o'clock this morning. Ships in the vicinity are rushing to her assistance, the Harbor Department states.

Off Frederick Island
 LOS ANGELES, Oct. 8.—A distress signal from the motorship Kenecott, giving her position as off Frederick Island, near Dixon's Entrance, Alaska, was picked up by the Federal Telegraph Company station here shortly before 1 a.m. today. The nature of the trouble was not given.

But One Call for Help
 SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 9.—The radio apparatus on the motorship Kenecott apparently was put out of commission at 1:12 a.m., shortly after the Kenecott sent out its first alarm for help, according to the Federal Telegraph Company, Radio Corporation of America. They expressed the opinion that the power to operate the radio was cut off by some accident in the engine-room.

Reported to Local Wireless
 At 8 o'clock last evening the local wireless station had a report from the Kenecott. She was then 450 miles north of Tacoma wireless station, en route south to Tacoma. No further report was received from her after that hour.

The Kenecott is a cargo carrier, tonnage 6,910 grossweight, owned and operated by the Alaska Steamship Company, of Seattle. She is 245 feet long and was placed in commission in 1921.

CONVENTION URGES POLITICAL ACTION

G.A.U.V. ELECTS COMRADE W. C. ANGUS PRESIDENT

Next Annual Session Will Be Held in Kamloops—Aids Dominion Veterans' Alliance's Mission

The Grand Army of United Veterans' convention, at its final session here Sunday morning, instructed its Provincial board and local branches to adopt a vigorous policy to consolidate the voting powers of members at the Federal and Provincial polls, and decided to be prepared, through the board of directors, to ascertain at the time of any Provincial or Federal election, which party may be best trusted to enact such legislation as will be of most value to the at-service man and give the largest measure of preference to ex-service men in the matter of employment in government positions, and to publicly advise its members of such political party.

Over sixty delegates to the convention were present in the morning and in the evening. Comrade W. C. Angus, of Kamloops, was chosen president for the next twelve months. Other officers elected were: First vice-president, Comrade J. G. Glenright, Vancouver; second vice-president, Comrade Phil Crouch, Victoria; third vice-president, Comrade C. M. Stirling, Burnaby; secretary-treasurer, Comrade J. A. Johnson, Burnaby (re-elected); and Tyler, Comrade W. Simpson, Vancouver.

The board of directors who will cooperate with the new officers elected consists of Comrades J. A. Gibson, New Westminster; H. L. Ricketts, Sidney; A. McKenzie, Coquitlam; J. W. Crawford, Vancouver, Provincial organizer; Arthur C. Howard, Victoria, and W. Bowes, Vancouver. Following the election the new officers were installed in office.

Kamloops Next Year
 The business sessions were presided over by Comrade Donald Grant, the retiring president. The convention followed the election in sending delegates to the recent convention of associations constituent to the Dominion.

URGES AUTONOMY OF DOMINIONS

Canada's Premier, at Imperial Conference, Emphasizes Belief Parliaments Must Be Free to Express Views

LEAGUE OF NATIONS IGNORED IS CLAIM

General Smuts Criticizes British Government for Its Attitude Towards League—Publicity Withheld

LONDON, Oct. 8.—The Imperial Conference tonight drew a veil of silence over its proceedings. After reporting the speeches during the first week either verbatim or at some length, the conference has decided that for the time being at any rate its proceedings will be regarded as confidential and its communiqué is merely to that effect.

During both sittings today the British foreign policy was under consideration, more particularly the recent statement by Marquis Curzon, British Foreign Secretary.

Favors Arbitration
 Premier King, of Canada, opened the debate on the subject this morning. While not touching specifically on the Ruhr situation, it is understood that the conference has decided to settle the international questions. He cited especially the amicable relations between Canada and the United States as an illustration, emphasizing what had been done by the international waterways commission and mentioning also the suggestion of Secretary Hughes of the United States for the extension of the scope of the commission.

Premier King referred to the Halifax Fisheries Treaty, and put forth the view that the Canadian government had negotiated directly with the United States in that matter because it was primarily a Canadian question, other parts of the Empire being affected only incidentally.

Urges Autonomy
 On the question of the relations of the Dominions to the Empire, King emphasized an autonomous point of view, arguing that the people and parliaments of the Dominions should be free to express their views and that the representatives of the Dominions in London were primarily responsible to their own parliaments.

So much one gathers tonight in the haze that has fallen over the conference proceedings. Of official information regarding the Premier's views and that the representatives of the Dominions in London were primarily responsible to their own parliaments.

The conference came to a unanimous decision that the whole of today's proceedings should be considered as strictly confidential.

After Premier King spoke this morning, Premier Smuts, of the South African Union, followed, and, according to reports tonight, he was very warm in his criticisms. He claimed, it is said, that the British Government had not been sufficiently definite in its attitude toward the League of Nations.

CAPITAL ENTERTAINS PRINCE OF WALES

His Royal Highness Spends Time Quietly at Ottawa—Remains in the Open Air

OTTAWA, Oct. 8.—Lord Renfrew is apparently enjoying his stay in Ottawa. It was stated this morning that the time at which Lord Renfrew would leave was as yet undecided, that he himself had made no arrangements in regard to his departure, these depending upon the programme arranged for him in Montreal.

This morning, after breakfast, Lord Renfrew enjoyed a vigorous game of golf on the Ottawa Golf Club and had lunch as a guest of Sir George Perley. The other guests were Sir Hon. Sir Robert Borden and Hon. Martin Burrell. After the luncheon the party enjoyed a foursome at golf. A private dance is scheduled for this evening.

Pulp Plant Ablaze; Workmen Leap to Safety

OREGON CITY, Ore., Oct. 8.—Plant B, of the Hawley Pulp & Paper Company, was destroyed by fire which started late last night in the machine room of the digester unit. The loss was estimated to be $750,000.

Twenty workmen, trapped in the upper floors of the plant escaped by leaping from the windows.

ALASKA LOOKS TO CANADIAN PORTS

U.S. COASTWISE SHIPPING LAW HURTS NORTH

Delegate to Washington En Route to Have "Alaska Clause" Eliminated—Expects Opposition

VANCOUVER, Oct. 8.—Alaska is going to make a great fight before Congress when that body next convenes, to have Prince Rupert made its principal port by the deletion of the so-called "Alaska clause" from the Jones coastwise shipping bill. This is the statement of Mr. John Rustgard, of Juneau, Attorney-General for Alaska, who is in Vancouver on his way to Washington, where he will direct the fight on behalf of the great American northern territory.

"At present we are practically shut out of British Columbia ports by the Alaska clause, which was slipped into the Jones bill without anyone realizing quite what it meant," said Mr. Rustgard. "All the cabinet secretaries who accompanied President Harding north this summer agree with us that the clause works a hardship, and they, together with Senator Jones, who fathered the coastwise bill, have promised to help us in our fight."

"If the Alaska clause is deleted from the bill, it will mean that Prince Rupert, our natural outlet, will become the great shipping port for the territory. But the deletion of the clause will do more than that. It will help every port along the coast, because when its hampering restrictions are removed Southeastern Alaska is open to us as well as this important shipping point," he said.

"Seattle, of necessity, has hitherto been our port, and I expect there will be considerable opposition from Seattle to any change in the coastwise laws. This opposition, to my mind, is short-sighted, as the development of Alaska means an increase in trade to the benefit not only of Prince Rupert and Vancouver, but of Seattle as well."

GRACIOUS ACT OF PRINCE AIDS VETERAN

Through Accident Crippled Ex-Serviceman Makes Acquaintance of His Royal Highness

OTTAWA, Oct. 8.—There is a returned soldier in Ottawa, who is a proud man today. On Sunday afternoon through a slight accident, he had the pleasure of meeting Lord Renfrew. The incident, which occurred while the Prince was journeying to one of the local golf courses was related by three witnesses.

The Prince was walking in the edge of the sidewalk in order to better see the captain's distinguished guest, the returned soldier, who is badly crippled, slipped off the walk falling heavily to the pavement.

Lord Renfrew saw the accident and signalled the car to stop, hopped out and picked up the man who had fallen. The soldier's hat had fallen and Lord Renfrew rescued it, brushed off the dust and restored it to its owner.

Then with cheery wishes and a word or two of regret at the accident, the Prince proceeded.

Vancouver's New Pier Formally Opened By Hon. Ernest Lapointe

VANCOUVER, Oct. 8.—The Ballantyne pier, one of the largest and most up-to-date structures of its kind on the continent, and admitted to be the finest on the Pacific Coast, was formally opened this afternoon by Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, before a crowd of several thousand citizens. A number of members of parliament of the United Kingdom were also present.

EMERGES FROM WAR'S CONFLICT A NATION AMONG THE NATIONS

Mr. Lloyd George Says Hughes' Plan Not Yet Too Late

MONTREAL, Oct. 8.—Upon his attention being drawn tonight to a statement in New York newspapers to the effect that President Coolidge believed that the proposal for a settlement of the reparations issue made by Secretary Hughes a year ago should be accepted by the interested countries, even now, Mr. Lloyd George commented as follows:

"I regard this as extremely important. In my opinion this plan is not too late for consideration and it is absolutely the best hope of a settlement of reparations. Of course, since the plan was first broached, the ability of Germany to pay is much less. The greater the delay, the closer the situation approaches chaos."

"I hope that serious consideration of Mr. Hughes' plan may be taken up even at this late date. I repeat that it is the best plan for a successful settlement."

CONFER HERE ON RATE CASE TODAY

MR. G. G. McGEER ARRIVES TO MEET PREMIER

May Determine Government's Next Step in Controversy—Attitude of Ottawa Is Still Uncertain

The British Columbia Government's next step in the railway rates situation will be discussed and perhaps determined today at a conference between Premier John Oliver and Mr. G. G. McGeer, K.C., counsel for the Railway Commission and the Canadian Railway Council.

Mr. McGeer arrived yesterday morning for the meeting, but the Premier did not reach the city until the afternoon.

The attitude of the Oliver government regarding the rate question has been the subject of much speculation recently, but it is believed that no drastic course will be decided upon in any event, not until the Dominion Government or the Railway Board Continued on Page 8

NATIVES WIPE OUT FRENCH GARRISON

Sixty Senegalese Soldiers Massacred by Rebels at Fouta, Near Timbuktu—Punitive Measures Planned

DAKAR, French West Africa, Oct. 8.—The French post sixty miles north of Timbuktu was revealed today. Armed natives with an estimated strength of 300 rifles surrounded the camp on September 29, during the absence of its commander, who was away reconnoitering, and after a seven-hour siege exterminated the garrison, consisting of sixty Senegalese soldiers and one native non-commissioned officer.

The French Governor-General of West Africa is organizing an expedition to proceed against the rebels.

HOPE BRITAIN WILL APPROVE PROPOSAL

Washington Takes Cognizance of Expression of British Prime Minister in Favor of 12-Mile Limit

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Expressions in British newspapers recently, favorable to the acceptance by Great Britain of the American proposal, limit treaty plan proposed by Secretary Hughes, to curb liquor smuggling into the United States, has caught the attention of officials here. While hope is entertained that deliberations of the British Imperial conference will result in the decision to comply with Secretary Hughes' suggestion, it was emphasized today that no authoritative indication has been received that such action would be taken.

Additional data in support of the American treaty plan for dealing simultaneously with rum smuggling and the inconveniences occasioned British ships by enforcement of the Volstead act has been left before the British Foreign Office by Ambassador Harvey.

In effect this is in answer to points made in the reply of the Foreign Office to the American proposal, and was submitted prior to the meeting of the Imperial Conference in order that British officials have a complete statement of the American viewpoint when the conference took up the question.

Fruit Pickers' Camp Burned

Mr. Lloyd George, Wartime Premier of Great Britain, at Montreal Voices Thanks of the British People for Aid Given by Dominion in Empire's Hour of Trial

MOVES THOUSANDS BY HIS ELOQUENCE

In Unstinted Fashion Famous Statesman Eulogizes Spontaneous Response Dominion Made to Call of Motherland in What Proved to Be Greatest Crisis in History of the Race

MONTREAL, Oct. 8.—Gratitude for the part played so resolutely and unhesitatingly by the Dominion of Canada in the great war was voiced here today by Mr. Lloyd George, who for most of the period of that struggle was the Prime Minister of Great Britain, in his first formal public address in America.

Speaking to an audience of 10,000, the man who occupied such an outstanding place during the great war declared with ringing eloquence that Canada, in that struggle, was "tried practically for the first time on a great scale in that burning, scorching crucible, and she came out pure and refined gold."

"Canada had to enter into an exhibition of her qualities," he continued, "in competition and conflict with the most virile races in the world, the strongest, the most tested, the most dominant races, and it was a searching test for a new nation. She passed through all these fiery trials. And, do not forget, she emerged with a certificate of nationhood, signed by all those great nations, friend and foe alike."

The distinguished visitor appeared in excellent health and spirits today, and even a slight hoarseness did not prevent him speaking at the mass meeting for nearly an hour, at times with fiery eloquence. Applause and cheers swept the hall repeatedly as he proceeded in his statement of thanks to the Dominion for its loyalty to the Empire in the dark days.

Democracy's Champion

Mr. Lloyd George was introduced by General Sir Arthur Currie, principal of McGill University, and commander-in-chief of the Canadian forces in France during the war, as one "whose name is a household word, one of our own kindred, who symbolizes for us the sound democracy of which our Empire and our Dominion so proudly boast."

"You sent across the seas," said Lloyd George, "400,000 men, and such men! When we were in doubt, when we were in hesitation, when there was apprehension, we had a message from Canada to say that great Dominion would stand behind the Motherland. This was the moral support you gave."

Describing the part played by the Canadian forces in many battles where disaster intended, he told of how posthaste were moved, with the result that the "maple leaf was emboldened forever on the slithering folds of the banner of human liberty."

Guardian of Liberty
 "The British Empire at War," the speaker declared, "revealed itself for the first time to the world as one of the supreme guardians of human liberty. England fought the Armada and established forever the principle of the freedom of worship; England fought Louis XIV, fought the attempts of Napoleon to establish an imperial regime over Europe. But for the first time the Empire came together into action with all its strength, all its gigantic might and majesty from the southern seas up to those of the north, from the eastern climes to the west, all the earth over on the Fourth of August, 1914. And thank God, when it came, it came to fight for liberty."

Mr. Lloyd George plans to spend the rest of his visit to this city quietly at his hotel, leaving for Ottawa by special train tomorrow afternoon.

The text of Lloyd George's speech follows:

Canada's Future
 "Sir Arthur Currie and I, I think, may now call you fellow-citizens of Montreal, since my inscription on the roll of this city. My first visit to your city was twenty-four years ago, and many things happen in a quarter of a century. In fact, this quarter of a century has crowded into it some of the most startling, some of the most fascinating and of the most molding events in human history. One thing I notice, that during that period you have grown in strength and prosperity, and I congratulate you from the bottom of my heart."

"Tours is a country of vast treasure and resource, and you are at the threshold of its greatness. You produce some of the best wheat in the world, you raise fine cattle, but the world knows today that above everything you produce a gallant race of men."

A Fateful Decision
 "Nine years ago Canada was faced, like many another nation in the world, with one of those decisions that determine its history, determine its fate, determine its status in the world. It determined the course which it pursued in the dim and unending years of the future. And your decision was a great one, was a courageous one, was resolute, and, above all, it was unhesitating."

"War is a terrible business at best, and it is a terrible business, it is a terrible business. It is a terrible business. It devastates, it ruins, and the triumph of statesmanship is to put an end to it."

Reciprocity
 LONDON, Oct. 8.—"Canada has sent her Premier to attend our Imperial Conference, and in the meantime Great Britain has sent Lloyd George to Canada. It is a form of reciprocity which promises to be fruitful," says The Daily Chronicle.

BUDDHIST SERVICES FOR FOREIGN DEAD

TOKIO, Oct. 8.—Memorial services for foreigners killed in the earthquake and fire were held yesterday in Zoji Temple, at Shiba Park, under the auspices of all the Buddhist sects. The chief priest of the Buddhist Temple conducted the services, which were attended by members of the Imperial Court and other government officials. Although the rain for the last thirty-six hours had made the streets rivers of mud, six thousand persons came to honor the foreign dead.

CANADA WELCOMES MR. LLOYD GEORGE

MONTREAL ACCORDS HIM TREMENDOUS OVATION

Former War Prime Minister Presented With Freedom of City—Comes to Thank Canada

MONTREAL, Oct. 8.—Former Premier Lloyd George was given the freedom of the city this morning at an open-air gathering on the steps of the City Hall Annex. He visited the Montreal Stock Exchange, where he was given an enthusiastic reception by a big crowd. A gorgeous bouquet of flowers was presented to Dame Lloyd George.

Presented to the members of the exchange without speech or formality, Mr. Lloyd George addressed them as follows:

"Gentlemen, I thank you for the cordial greeting you have given me. It is a new experience to me to be in the stock exchange, although, as Chancellor of the Exchequer, I was used to dealing with members of the stock exchange in London, and I have the experience that they are a most patriotic body."

No Vain Appeal
"Whenever there was ever anything to be done to help the financing of the war, or to help in the conduct of the war, I appealed to them, and I never made an appeal in vain. In every respect they were helpful, cordial and patriotic."

"And that also applies to the stock brokers of Montreal. Your assistance here was invaluable because, as I may venture to say, we had to fight with silver bullets, and in order to get enough of them we had to call upon the help of the exchange here."

After a burst of cheering the party was off in their cars on a rapid trip along the harbor front and then to the City Hall.

Standing on the steps of the City Hall, Mayor Martin presented the distinguished visitor the freedom of the city. Mr. Lloyd George replied as follows:

"Mr. Mayor and people of Montreal: It comes within my privilege to

GREAT BRITAIN PREPARES FOR THE OLYMPIC GAMES
John Bull: "Right, Father. We shall not disappoint you when the bell rings."

"I am sorry to be unable to reply to your kind address in adequate terms in French, as the extent of my mastery of that language is not equal to doing justice to the task."

A United Empire
"It comes within my privilege to meet as many of the French race as I possibly can, on terms of cordial unity. Our Empire is one of many races and of many creeds. There is no empire in history that covers so many races and so many creeds. Loyalty is just as sound and as durable a quantity in one language as it is in another."

"I thank the corporation of this city and I thank the citizens of this beautiful and magnificent city for the honor they do me in enrolling me as one of the citizens of their great metropolis."

The address concluded, civic officials pressed around to shake hands with Mr. Lloyd George, and the police on duty had their hands full. One plump, motherly-looking dame who had a great advantage over the constables in point of avardupola, firmly planted herself on the inner side before one of the stairway pillars and defied any policeman to move her from there and still remain a gentleman. Her persistency was rewarded by Lloyd George stepping out and shaking her hand.

Attends Church

MONTREAL, Oct. 8.—Europe is in the midst of a great struggle between hope and despair, and that struggle is becoming material, Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, war-time Premier of Great Britain, declared in an address here yesterday. Speaking briefly at an open air service, during which he turned the first sod for the new Westmount Baptist Church, he declared he was glad Montreal and Canada were not the victims of "the plague of materialism which is threatening to engulf the world."

"I am glad," he added, "that you here do not live by bread alone."

Attendance at the ceremony was the one break in a Sunday spent quietly with friends and resting after a period of several days' intense activity.

At the close of the church service, at which the Rev. Dr. M. F. MacCuthcheon preached the sermon, he was formally welcomed to Canada by speakers on behalf of the Baptists of "Victorious Quebec."

Mr. Lloyd George was accorded a magnificent welcome in Montreal Saturday night when the special train which conveyed him from New York steamed into the Bonaventure Station at 8:20 o'clock. Thousands of persons thronged the terminal and the streets leading to it in the hope of catching a glimpse of the man whose name was so familiar the world over during the dark war years.

As he left the train with his wife and daughter and came in view of the great concourse which awaited him, cheers arose which seemed to shake the depot, and which completely drowned the strains of the Welsh National Anthem played by a band at the end of the platform.

Remarkable Ovation
When Lloyd George and his party stepped from the train they were met by Mayor Martin, Gen. Sir Arthur Currie, Lord Altholme, Lord Broughmeyer, Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, J. W. Ross, president of the Board of Trade, Hon. Walter Mitchell, Senators Casagrain, Foster and Webster, Brig.-Gen. Dods, Armstrong and McCuaig, Hon. C. C. Ballantyne, Sir Charles Gordon, Col. Melghen, Grant Hall, Pierre Bellanger, chief constable of the city, and many other men prominent in the social, business and public life of Montreal.

As the party proceeded into the station the concourse became intense. Police struggled with the enthusiastic people, and at times were forced to use the ends of their batons before a narrow passage could be cleared.

When the hotel was reached the police found a dense crowd packed in front of the main entrance, and once again the struggle commenced to clear a passage for the ex-Premier and his party.

Standing at the end of the apartment farthest from the crowd which was confined to the main roundabout, the ex-Premier shook hands with those presented to him by Mayor Martin. Despite the bright twinkles in his eyes, which is not overdone in his photograph, Mr. Lloyd George could not prevent an expression of weariness from creeping over his features. The day had been a strenuous one.

Greatest Veteran
The wartime Premier of Great Britain was impressed with all he met Saturday night, but when a young man in a United States army uniform, who had lost a leg in the war, reached him, he was visibly touched and, taking him by the hand, he looked kindly into the veteran's face and inquired about his experiences in the war. He patted the soldier on the shoulder in a friendly manner as he passed on down the line.

When everyone holding tickets had been presented to Lloyd George preparations were made to conduct him and his party to the elevator. Noting this, the people in the front room of the hotel, and who were immovable in the hotel, shouted: "Speech," "Speech," a cry which spread rapidly until it echoed like thunder from wall to wall.

Mounting a sofa which was drawn forward for the purpose, he said: "Ladies and gentlemen, I am extremely obliged for your kindness in coming here to greet me on the occasion of my second arrival in Canada, a welcome which I sincerely appreciate and which I will always remember. Your country has grown a great deal since I was here before, grown so much that it was hardly recognizable except for the splendid outlines."

Thanks to Canada
"I was anxious to come to Canada as the old war Prime Minister to thank you for your splendid contribution to that struggle and to tell you how deeply the people of Great Britain appreciate the wonderful manner in which you rallied to us in the day of trouble. I am here to thank you for that help. I wish to express my gratitude as the Minister in charge during those years and to thank you for your kindness here tonight."

As the distinguished speaker concluded his brief address a tremendous outburst of cheering rent the air, succeeded by the singing of "He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

When the sound of the old familiar song died away the throng cheered again, and amidst the enthusiastic din the ex-Premier was conducted to the elevator and succeeded to his apartment.

To audiences in homes throughout the land, "His Master's Voice" Victrola brings all the entertainment of the world's greatest, most famous artists. Think of it in terms of a great animate theatre—a conservatory of music, through whose welcoming doors your fancy may pass at will.

Based on the same principles which give the human voice or the very finest violin their powers of reproduction—it is the human voice, it is the voice of the violin.

Only the living presence of the artist is missing but even this is overcome, for its performance pictures their personalities in a subtle lifelike something—peculiar alone to this marvelous instrument. Combined with "His Master's Voice" Victor Records—it is the singer and his song.

It were just as unthinkable that any instrument could take its place as that someone ELSE could be a Caruso, someone else could substitute for a Galli-Curci, a McCormack or an Elman.

No voice can take the place of "His Master's Voice". Pay it the homage it deserves. Prevent substitution by demanding that the instrument you buy bears our famous trade mark "His Master's Voice" (under the lid). Years of pleasure will repay you for this caution.

Defends Plan Which Culminated at Last In Gallipoli Rout

Mr. Churchill Persists That Decision to Force Dardanelles, Disarm Turkey, Overawe Balkans, and Paralyze Austria by Flank Movement Was Sound Strategy and Was Endorsed by War Cabinet

THE WORLD CRISIS: 1915

By the Right Hon. Winston S. Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, 1911-1915
(Copyright, 1923, in Great Britain and Ireland by The Times, London. In Canada by The North American Newspaper Alliance. In India by The Hindustan Press. In South Africa by The Cape Argus. In Australia by The United Cable Service.)

ARTICLE 2—THE SEARCH FOR A NAVAL OFFENSIVE

ON January 21 received the following letter from Lord Kitchener: "You have no doubt seen Buchanan's telegram about the Russians and Turks; if not Fitzgerald is taking it over. Do you think any naval action would be possible to prevent the Turks sending more men into the Caucasus and thus denuding Constantinople?" With this note, Colonel Fitzgerald brought the telegram with which the following extract is relevant: "Early this week the position of Russians in the Caucasus gave cause for grave anxiety, Turks having commenced enveloping movement seriously threatening Russian forces. Commander-in-Chief of the army in the Caucasus pressed most urgently for reinforcements, many Caucasian troops being now employed against Germans, but Grand Duke has told him he must manage to keep on as he is. Grand Duke sent for General Williams on Wednesday and officially informed him he was determined to proceed with his present plans against Germany and keep them unaltered."

"Fourth Siberian Army Corps now on the way to Warsaw, and will be joined by Guard Army Corps when it is hoped to continue active operations against Germans, and thus help to ease position of Allies, although in ordinary course it would be natural to send Caucasians to Turkish front."

"Grand Duke, however, asked if it would be possible for Lord Kitchener to arrange for a demonstration of some kind against Turkey elsewhere, either naval or military, and to spread reports which would cause the Turks, who he says are very liable to go off at a tangent, to withdraw some of their forces now acting against Russians in the Caucasus, and thus ease the position of Russians."

Kitchener's Need of Men
The Grand Duke added that, even if Lord Kitchener was unable to help, he should stick to his present plans. Later in the day Lord Kitchener came over himself to see me at the Admiralty, and we had a full discussion on the Russian telegram and whether the navy could do anything to help. All the possible alternatives in the Turkish theatre were mentioned. We both had in mind our discussions of November on the possibilities of a descent from Egypt upon Gallipoli. We both saw clearly the far-reaching consequences of a successful attack on Constantinople. If there was any prospect of a serious attempt to force the Straits of the Dardanelles at a later stage, it would be in the highest degree desirable to stir them up for the sake of a mere demonstration. I put this point forward and suggested alternative diversions to help the Russians. Lord Kitchener did not dissent from the argument, but he returned steadily and decidedly to the statement that he had no troops to spare, and could not face a large new expansion of our military commitments. I have no record of this conversation, but my recollection of it is confirmed by the second letter which I received from Lord Kitchener on this same day (January 21).

Lord Kitchener to Mr. Churchill
January 21, 1915.
I do not see that we can do anything that will very seriously help the Russians in the Caucasus. The Turks are evidently withdrawing most of their troops from Adrianople and using them to reinforce their army against Russia, probably sending them by the Black Sea. In the Caucasus and Northern Persia the Russians are in a bad way. We have no troops to land anywhere. A demonstration at Smyrna would do no good and probably cause the slaughter of Christians. Alexandretta has already been tried, and would have no great effect a second time. The coast of Syria would have to effect. The only place that a demonstration might have some effect in stopping reinforcements going east would be the Dardanelles. Particularly if, as the Grand Duke says, reports could be spread at the same time that Constantinople was threatened.

We shall not be ready for anything big for some months. On the same day Lord Kitchener, as the result no doubt of the conversation which he had had with me, sent through the Foreign Office the following telegram to Petrograd: "Please assure the Grand Duke

1. Appoint Sir W. Robertson, the present quartermaster-general, to command the Expeditionary Force; 2. Immediately replace all Indians and 75,000 seasoned troops from Sir John French's command with Territorial, etc., from England (as you yourself suggested); and embark this Turkish Expeditionary Force ostensibly for protection of Egypt, with all possible despatch at Marseilles; and land them at Beika Bay direct with previous feints before they arrive with troops now in Egypt against Haifa and Alexandretta. The latter to be a real occupation because of its inestimable value as regards the oil fields of the Garden of Eden, with which by rail it is in direct communication, and we should not let the Germans establish at Alexandretta with an immense Turkish concentration—the last act of that arch-enemy of England Marshal von Hindenburg."

3. The Greeks to go for Gallipoli at the same time as we go for Beika, and the Bulgarians for Constantinople and the Russians, the Serbians and Roumanians for Austria (all this you said yourself); 4. Sturdee forces the Dardanelles at the same time with "Majestic" class and "Canopus" class. God bless him! But as the great Napoleon said, "Celerity"—without it—"Failure!" In the history of the world—Austria has never won! You want one man!—You, P.

A Consensus of Opinion
There never was the slightest chance of the whole of the Fisher being carried into effect. Sir William Robertson, to whom he proposed to entrust it, would presumably have advised strongly against it, his policy being concentration in the main, or, he would no doubt have decided it, the decisive theatre. The withdrawal of the India Corps and 75,000 seasoned troops from Sir John French's command and their replacement by territorial divisions would have been resisted to the point of resignation by the commander-in-chief, supported by his whole staff. General Joffre and the French Government would have protested in a decisive manner. Lord Fisher's third paragraph about the Greeks, Bulgarians, Serbians and Roumanians expressed exactly what everybody wanted. It was the obvious supreme objective in this part of the world. The question was how to procure it? This was the root of the matter. It was in connection with this that Lord Fisher's fourth paragraph made its impression upon me. Here for the first time was the suggestion of forcing the Dardanelles with old battleships.

This series of weighty representations had the effect of making me move. I thought I saw a great convergence of opinion in the direction of that attack upon the Dardanelles which I had always so greatly desired. The arguments in its favor were overwhelming. And now the highest authorities, political, naval and military, were apparently ready to put their shoulders to the wheel. Mr. Lloyd George's advocacy and influence seemed about to be cast in the direction of Turkey and the Balkans. Though his method was different, the ultimate object, namely, the rallying of the Balkan States against Austria and Turkey, was the same, and all his arguments applied equally to either method. I knew from my talks with Mr. Balfour that he, too, was profoundly impressed by the advantages which might be reaped by successful action in this southeastern theatre. Lastly, the foreign office and Sir Edward Grey were, of course, keenly interested. Here was a great consensus of opinion. Here it seemed, at last, was a sufficient impulse and unity for action. But was there a practicable scheme? This I determined to find out, and on January 2, with the active agreement of Lord Fisher and after a talk with Sir Henry Jackson, who was specially studying this question and advising thereupon, I telegraphed to Vice-Admiral Carden, commanding at the Dardanelles, as follows:

Admiralty to Vice-Admiral Carden
January 3, 1915.
Do you consider the forcing of the Dardanelles by ships alone a practicable operation? It is assumed older battleships fitted with mine-bumpers would be used, preceded by colliers or other merchant craft as mine-bumpers and sweepers. Importance of results would justify severe loss. Let me know your views.

This was purely exploratory. I did not commit myself at this stage even to the general principle of an attack upon Turkey. I wanted to see the alternative weighed and to see what support such projects would in fact command. All our affairs at this time were complicated with the plans which, as has been explained in the last chapter, were under discussion for the next day, "hear what others have to say about the Turkish plans before taking a decided line. I would not grudge 100,000 men, because of the great political effect in the Balkan Peninsula."

"The naval advantages," he replied the same day, "of the possession of the Dardanelles and the getting of wheat from the Black Sea are so overwhelming that I consider Colonel Hankey's plan for Turkish operations vital and imperative and very pressing."

There is no doubt we could have worked together unaided and with the utmost enthusiasm, for the southern amphibious plan, if it had been pressed forward by the war council on a great scale and with the necessary drive and decision. On January 5 the answer from Vice-Admiral Carden arrived. It was remarkable.

Vice-Admiral Carden to First Lord
January 5, 1915.

"With reference to your telegram of 2d instant, I do not consider Dardanelles can be rushed. 'They might be forced by extended operations with large number of ships.'"

At the war council that afternoon the question of an attack on Turkey and a diversion in the Near East was one of the principal subjects discussed. Every one seemed alive to all its advantages, and Admiral Carden's telegram, which I read out, was heard with extreme interest. Its significance lay in the fact that it offered a prospect of influencing the Eastern situation in a decisive manner without opening a new military commitment on a large scale; and it afforded an effective means of helping the Grand Duke without wanting the Dardanelles possibilities upon nothing more than demonstration. On my return to the Admiralty I found that the idea of a gradual forcing of the Straits by extended operations was viewed with favor both by Admiral Oliver, chief of the staff, and Sir Henry Jackson, I had a conversation with Sir Henry Jackson, who had that day completed a memorandum upon the question (which I read some days later). Sir Henry Jackson deprecated any attempt to rush the Straits, but he spoke of the considerable effects of the brief bombardment of November 3, and he was attracted by the idea of a step-by-step reduction of the fortresses, though troops would be needed to follow up and complete the naval attack, and especially to occupy Constantinople. So here we had the chief of the staff, the admiral studying this particular theatre, and the admiral in command, all apparently in general accord in principle. This coincidence of opinion in officers so widely separated and so differently circumstanced impressed me very much, and I therefore telegraphed on January 6 to Vice-Admiral Carden as follows:

First Lord to Admiral Carden
January 6, 1915.
"Your view is agreed with by high authorities. Please telegraph in detail what you think could be done by extended operations, what force would be needed, and how you consider it should be used."

On January 11 arrived the detailed Carden plan. It was in its details largely the work of a very able officer of the admiralty—Captain (Godfrey) (two was one of the vice-admiral's staff)—and of the gunnery experts of the ship.

The Queen Elizabeth

This plan produced a great impression upon every one who saw it. It was to me in its details an entirely novel proposition. My telegram had contemplated something in the nature of an organized "rush" in accordance with Lord Fisher's suggestion about Admiral Sturdee forcing the Straits with the "Canopus" class of battleships. I sent a copy of the plan at once to the Prime Minister and some others, and it was freely discussed among those who were informed. Both the first sea lord and the chief of the staff seemed favorable to it. No one at any time threw the slightest doubt upon its technical soundness. No one, for instance, of the four or five great naval authorities each with his technical staff, who were privy said, "This is absurd. Ships cannot fight forts," or criticized its details. On the contrary, they all treated it as an extremely interesting and hopeful proposal, and there grew up in the secret circles of the admiralty a perfectly clear opinion favorable to the operation. It was then that the war staff made a suggestion which certainly greatly affected the issue.

The Queen Elizabeth, the first in order of the five fast battleships armed with 15-inch guns, was now ready. It had been decided to send her to fire her gunnery trials and calibration exercises in the safe, calm waters of the Mediterranean. She was actually under orders to proceed thither. The staff now proposed that she should test her enormous guns against the Dardanelles, and pointed out that she could fire at ranges far outside those of the Turkish forts. This had not occurred to me before. But the moment it was mentioned, its importance was apparent. We all felt ourselves in the presence of a new fact. Moreover, the Queen Elizabeth came into the argument with a cumulative effect. Vice-Admiral Carden had never dreamed of having her. Our previous discussions and his detailed plan had ignored any help that she might give.

C.P.R. SOCIAL CLUB OPENS WINTER SEASON

Big Ball Tomorrow Evening at Empress Hotel Starts Activities of Popular Hosts

Everything is in readiness for the opening ball tomorrow evening at the Empress Hotel. The C.P.R. Social Club has won an enviable reputation for holding really enjoyable dances, and the committee in charge is making every endeavor to make Wednesday night's ball a most successful one. The dancing commences at 9 o'clock on Wednesday evening, and the usual delectable buffet supper, as provided by the Empress Hotel, has been arranged for, while lemonade and soft drinks will be provided throughout the evening. In order to insure the comfort and pleasure of all the patrons from overseas, the ballroom committee has put on sale of tickets at a reduced price. These are finding a ready sale, as only a few are left.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE TO ENTER PROTEST

Strawberry Vale Body Objects to Sale of Land—Series of Events Under Auspices of Organization

A protest will be sent to the Saanich School Board by the Strawberry Vale Women's Institute against closing the school on June 15 as the disadvantages are held to far outweigh the advantages of the plan. The members at a meeting last week agreed to an invitation from Saanich Women's Institute to exhibit at the annual flower show on October 10.

A concert will be held in the Strawberry Vale Hall on Saturday at 8 p.m. (instead of today as at first proposed) by the vocal pupils of Mrs. J. W. Nasmith. There will also be recitations by clever elocutionists, dancing and piano solos. A musical treat is promised.

At the meeting of the Institute on Tuesday it was decided to hold a home-cooking stall on October 20, to help pay for the Strawberry Vale School plan.

A card party and barn dance will be held on October 26, when there will also be a cup and saucer shower for the Institute rooms.

SURPRISE SHOWER

On Saturday evening a delightful linen shower was given in honor of Miss Janet and Jean McKean, who have recently opened a nursing home at 2644 Blanshard Street.

Among those present were: Mrs. T. Miller, Mrs. J. M. Fowler, Mrs. C. Northam, Miss L. Northam, Mrs. H. Hadlin, Mrs. A. H. Adams, Mrs. A. J. E. Bishop, Mrs. C. H. Johnson, Mrs. E. B. Baker, Mrs. J. McLean, Mrs. J. McLean, Mrs. W. Fox, Miss E. Leigh, Miss K. and M. Hole, Miss J. Whitehead, Miss B. Johnson, Miss K. Brethour, Miss M. Crater, Mrs. B. Griffin, Miss E. Mitchell, Mrs. D. Gay, Miss N. Foxall and Miss Agnes McFlynn.

A very pleasant evening was spent, during which dainty refreshments were served. Miss B. Griffin delighted the company with humorous recitals and Miss Nettie Foxall's singing was received with applause.

Mrs. Clem Davies, Mrs. Brethour and Miss Cousins, who were unable to be present, sent an acceptable gift of linen.

PREPARES TO GOPE WITH BUSY SEASON

Mr. J. Rose is Most Optimistic With Regard to Outlook—Makes Preparations for Next Year

Mr. J. Rose, jeweler and optician, is reducing his stock of goods and with a relentless hand has cut prices to ensure his object. The object which Mr. Rose has in view, however, can in no way be construed as arising from any lack of faith in Victoria. On the contrary his optimism with respect to the local situation is behind his move to cut his stock down.

For five years he has been doing business in his present location. He has found the premises as now arranged small, and accordingly he has taken the present opportunity to get ready for a big season next year. Mr. Rose has no doubt about the coming year. He has experienced a good season's business this summer and in no small measure attributes it to the tourist trade. Next year he believes will be better still in this line and he is getting ready to take full advantage of this trade as well as cater more efficiently to the local business. To this the whole interior of the store is undergoing alteration. The showcases are all being taken out within the next two days and artistic mahogany being made in their place. The front is to be altered to better display goods, while the floor space will be materially enlarged.

The sale of the last few days has been intended to reduce the stock as low as possible so that there will be no interference with the alterations as practicable.

Immediately following the change in the store, Mr. Rose expects his Christmas goods, which he will be able to display to the best advantage with his new furnishing. Mr. Rose will make better provision than in the past for the department of eye-testing and will continue to conduct this work under his own special supervision. The most scientific instruments will be introduced and a specialty will be made of up-to-date work at reasonable rates as in the past.

Conducting a cash business, Mr. Rose says he is prepared to give his customers all the advantages that go with this. He is able to reduce his prices to the lowest margin, having no bad debts to contend with.

Mr. Rose's optimism respecting the city is of the most practical kind and he expects to have one of the most attractive stores of its kind when the alterations take place.

minion Veterans' Alliance for the purpose of forming a Provincial council for British Columbia, and instructed its board of directors to pay to the Provincial Council the sums agreed upon by its delegates to the council, namely, $5 per month towards a salary for the secretary and its proportion of the office expenses and stationery.

At the evening session Comrade Clement and his associates presented elected delegates to the Dominion Veterans' Alliance. A resolution expressing confidence in the Dominion government, and approving of its stand in the matter of the cash bonus, re-establishment and other subjects was passed.

Reports Show Progress

Presidents of the various branches of the association of the Province reported on the condition of the respective units, stating that marked interest was being taken in the Grand Army of United Veterans, and the firm determination to make a success of the branches and the organization as a whole. In every case increased membership and enthusiasm were reported.

The secretary was instructed to send a letter of condolence to the relatives of the late Comrade Ross, formerly of New Westminster.

Thanks Daily Colonist

Hearty notes of thanks were tendered to The Daily Colonist for its generous publicity of the convention sessions, the Victoria G.A.U.V. branch for its reception and entertainment of the delegates, Comrade Crawford for his fine work as Provincial organizer, and the retiring board of directors for its work in promoting the interests of the organization.

The singing of "O Canada" opened the programme at the annual convention banquet, which took place on Sunday afternoon, commencing at 12:30 o'clock in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium. President-elect Angus proved an acceptable chairman, and expressed pleasure in seeing that the gathering was such a representative one. He complimented the ladies, but regretted that more of them were not in attendance. Votes of thanks were extended to the local press for publicity, and the local G.A.U.V. branch for its manner in conducting the convention arrangements.

Retiring President Donald Grant, on behalf of the convention, presented a substantial cheque to Secretary-Treasurer Johnson, of Burnaby. The gift being an appreciation by the members of Comrade Johnson's efficient service in the office in the organization that he occupies. Mrs. Johnson was also honored, the assembly lustily singing "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow." Comrade Grant expressed the thanks of his wife and himself to the members for their expressions of goodwill, and said he would advance the G.A.U.V. cause throughout the coming year in every possible way.

Urges Increase of Members

Comrade Phil Groulx, president of Victoria branch, addressed the gathering briefly, urging the members to do all in their power to increase the membership in the various branches, and stating that he felt that in the near future the Grand Army of United Veterans would be the only surviving organization.

PROVINCIAL OFFICER REPORTS CONVENTION

Mrs. Scott, Provincial Vice-President of Council of Women, Summarized Halifax Proceedings

Mrs. D. Scott, Provincial vice-president of the Council of Women, supplied the chief interest at the regular meeting of the local Council, held yesterday afternoon. Her report of the meeting of the National Council, held at Halifax recently, and which she attended as a member of the executive and also as Provincial delegate, was a comprehensive summary of the proceedings and also provided a sidelight on the spirit which animated the convention.

One of the matters brought before the National Council which attracted much attention and to which much sympathetic discussion was given, said Mrs. Scott, was Mrs. Hanington's scheme for maternity nurses to be supplied to districts where there are not yet any Victorian Order workers. Another portion of Mrs. Scott's report was occupied with the recommendations and resolutions forwarded by the British Columbia council women. She was warmly thanked by the Victoria Council when she concluded her report. During her stay in Victoria she is the guest at Bishop's Court of Mrs. Schofield, president of the local society.

Mrs. J. D. Gordon, representing the committee which is working on the matter of the establishment here of a juvenile court, reported progress.

Cries of "Earthquake" Cause Stampede in Crowded East London Street Market—Sixty Injured

LONDON, Oct. 8.—Shouts of "earthquake" in a crowded street market held in the east end of London yesterday caused a wild stampede in which a number of people were trampled, hundreds of cages animals destroyed, and a quantity of miscellaneous property ruined or stolen.

The scene of the disaster was the narrow Solihull Street, Bethnal Green, a noted centre for the sale of domestic pets. Local traders say that an auction was in progress in the open street when a band of toughs rushed into the throng of thousands of marketeers and speculators, yelling "earthquake."

The crowd fled screaming toward both ends of the street, while the stalls with which it was lined were overturned. The cages birds and animals and other property that fell in the path of the terrified mob suffered severely, many of the creatures being trampled to death, and many of the people falling among them to be trampled themselves.

The Daily Mail gives the casualties as sixty persons injured, of whom a dozen were taken to hospital, 2,000 small cage birds either killed or escaped, 100 dogs and cats and scores of poultry killed.

The terror of the crowd was increased by the explosion of bottles of gasoline in one of the overturned stalls.

This led to the belief that shooting war in progress. The dealers state that the whole affair was an organized raid by a gang of thieves. Anyway, there seems to have been wholesale looting during the stampede.

The Girl in the Corner Apartment

By MAY CHRISTIE
Author of "One Glorious Year," "The Daring Kim," Etc.

THE CHARACTERS
Cynthia Brent, country girl, living in a New York apartment who has inherited from an old lady she once befriended.
Ruby Allison, her gay and frivolous friend.
Alec Kerr, Ruby's fiancé.
Quentin Gray, an artist friend of Ruby's.
Aunt Ellen, who keeps house for Cynthia.
Murray Stewart, for whom Cynthia is working as a stenographer.
Mrs. Wakeland, friend and rich client of Stewart, who takes a fancy to Cynthia.
Violet Jerrold, friend of Murray's.

XI—An Invitation
ONE hour later, cheered and consoled by kind Aunt Ellen, who—bit by bit and piece by piece—had got the tale of Violet's usurpation, Cynthia was able to talk coherently on the subject.

"There's a mystery in it somewhere, of that I'm positive," Aunt Ellen's knowledge of life was quite profound for one who had passed most of her days in the quiet atmosphere of country towns and villages. Besides the old lady was gifted with an intuition that was positively uncanny sometimes.

"That Jerrold girl is at the bottom of the affair. Mr. Stewart was perfectly satisfied with you and with your work and ways—"

"Until she came," supplemented Cynthia, bitterly. Then she added: "Of course, Mr. Stewart is perfectly free to change his mind just as often as he pleases, and he's been generous enough to send me two weeks' salary in lieu of notice."

Aunt Ellen sniffed in the way she usually did when annoyed.

"Call him up again, dearie, and speak to him direct. That girl wants to be got-between, and make mischief. I shouldn't believe a syllable she says, if I were you."

At that moment the phone bell rang, and Cynthia answered its summons.

"Hello! Hello! Is that little Cynthia, Brent?" a woman's voice percolated through the instrument. "This is Margaret Wakeland speaking. How are you?"

The girl made some formal answer. Then the other continued: "I've rung up, my dear, to beg and implore you to help me out of a difficulty. I've got a dinner party on tonight, and one of my guests, a charming woman (but old enough to be your mother), has failed me at the last moment. Will you step into the breach and help me out of the trouble? I'll be eternally grateful, and I know you won't be offended at such a short notice. Do say 'yes' to me."

Cynthia demurred at first. She had never attended a fashionable dinner party in her life, and she was shy.

But Mrs. Wakeland was insistent. "If you haven't got a frock, dear, I can lend you one. Or buy you one."

If you'll allow me? What's that you say? Oh, you have got one! Then everything's all right! So glad! Dinner's at quarter to eight, but come about seven-thirty, so you and I can have a moment's chat before the others turn up. Good-bye."

There was a final click at the other end of the wire, then silence. Cynthia turned ruefully to her aunt.

"Oh, I don't want to go!—"

"Nonsense, my dear! It'll be the very thing to cheer you up. Besides, Mrs. Wakeland is the very woman to advise you in your present difficulty. It was at her home that you first met Violet Jerrold, and when you tell her—"

"I shan't tell her anything." The girl's pretty mouth tightened. "I'm not going to whine about my troubles. Mrs. Wakeland has lots of her own."

Aunt Ellen was wise in her generation, and said nothing at the moment. Then, with a breezy air:

"You'll wear the new black velvet frock with the silver tissue panels, won't you, dear? There are some scraps left over from the cutting, and we'd better make a little evening 'vanity' bag to hold your handkerchief and purse."

At quarter past seven Cynthia was dressed and looking very lovely. Her pretty hair was parted at one side, and dressed rather low across her forehead, with little waves and curls about each ear.

Her dark eyes shone like stars, and excitement, combined with the nervous tension of the day, had brought two vivid spots of a wild-rose tint into her softly rounded cheeks.

The smart black chiffon velvet frock fitted to perfection. Ruby's friend from the big Fifth Avenue establishment had cut it with a dash that one usually meets in high-priced French models, and not in home-made garments.

"The lanky blackness of it throws up your lovely coloring," Ruby gaily had remarked, staring appreciatively at her friend. "My goodness, you'll make all the cats at the dinner table ready to scratch and bite you—so beware!"

"You look like a dream. Your partner'll lose his appetite, poor fellow!" Then, examining the frock: "Gracious me, it's exquisite! I saw a dress not half so pretty only this afternoon in Fifth Avenue priced ninety dollars, and that was sale price, too. Quentin was right when he said you'd look like a fairy princess or a little queen in this sort of rigout. No, I'm not jealous. I'm admiring."

She kissed her friend in her quick, impulsive way.

Fifteen minutes later Cynthia reached her hostess' home, and was shown upstairs into a charming gray and gold bedroom.

"My dear, I'm eternally grateful that you came!" Mrs. Wakeland greeted her with pleased cordiality. In her left hand she was holding a gorgeous ostrich-feather fan of a brilliant tint, mounted on a silver handle. The fan consisted of one enormous feather, long and thick and graceful, dyed to a lovely shade of deep rose red. "This is a little gift for a good girl! Please take it, with my love."

She handed the fan to Cynthia, who flushed until the rose of her cheeks matched the tint of the gift.

"For me? How beautiful! But—"

It's too perfect for—for my clothes—she stammered, taken aback. "Nonsense! The silver handle matches the silver tissue of your frock, and you look too pretty for words, holding it just so!" She placed the deep rose close against the lanky black.

"There, keep it! I shall watch the march of events with great interest tonight."

Players, Writers and Fans Gathering for Fray With Many Predictions That the Dope Will Be Upset Once More—Babe Ruth Will Be Big Factor This Year

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—The respective chances of the Giants and Yankees in their third world's series are being discussed by the usual vanguard of players, writers and fans, who come from the thousand and one baseball corners of the continent.

NEW LINKS OPEN

The Cedar Hill golf course is now open for play. The recent rains enabled the proprietors of this latest addition to Victoria's golfing facilities to do a lot of useful work on the fairways and greens, which are now in fine condition. It is expected that there will be a lot of Victoria golfers on these fine links trying out the course during the next few days. The course is easily reached, being but eight minutes' walk from the terminus of the Hillside car line, and buses from the city pass within one minute's walk of the first tee.

CUMBERLAND WINS FROM DAVENPORTS

Score Two to Nil in Fast Up-Island Soccer Match—Winners Have Slight Advantage

CUMBERLAND, Oct. 7.—In brilliant weather and before a good crowd, the Cumberland team, football team defeated the exceptionally fast stepping Davenport team, of Nanaimo, by a score of two goals to nothing. The Davenport team won the toss and set the home team to a strong sun. James immediately got his forwards moving, and after a brilliant piece of combination on the part of the home forwards, Toots Plump scored a good goal less than five minutes from the start. The visitors made tracks for Blair from the centre, and during their brief stay, both Goni and Hiltz received injuries, as also did Zaccarelli, the visitors' centre half. Goni received a nasty bump on the side of the right eye, which made him groggy for some considerable time, necessitating his taking the right back position and Gough coming up to the centre half position. After receiving attention from their respective trainers, the game was started once more with the locals assuming the aggressive, and giving the visitors' goals an anxious time. James had extremely hard lines on two or three occasions, one anxiety on the part of the centre forward spilling Cumberland of two more goals. Corner after corner was forced by Cumberland's left wing, but the visitors' defence was not to be beaten again, their right full back playing an exceptionally good game. Half-time arrived, and Cumberland pressing and a goal to the goal.

After the usual breather the visitors went off with rare dash, and for a time enjoyed a good portion of the play. Hiltz then laid out right in the goal mouth and had to be carried off the field. Playing with ten men the home team became more determined, but could do nothing with four forwards. Hiltz then charged down by the defence when a goal seemed certain, the ball going out to Bannerman, who hit the post with a hot shot. Time was drawing to a close, the visitors' supporters showing encouragement to their pets to make a draw of it, when Milligan practically put the game on ice for the home team. Receiving the ball from the centre line the inside right footed three of his opponents and with a well-placed pass gave Toots Plump the chance of a lifetime. Toots made no mistake, bulging the back of the net with a great drive. With only about two minutes to play, the visitors lost heart, Cumberland pressing hard to the finish.

JOHNNY MORGAN WINS DECISION

HAD CLOSE FIGHT FOR TITLE IN DUNCAN RING

Roy Cliffe, of Courtenay, Made Bold Bid for Professional Middle-weight Championship

DUNCAN, Oct. 7.—Johnny Morgan, professional middleweight champion of British Columbia, retained his title here on Saturday night, when he won the decision in a ten-round contest over Roy Cliffe, of Courtenay.

The decision was not a very popular one, as many of those present believed that Cliffe deserved a draw at points which it was impossible for the referee to disregard, and his decision was undoubtedly the proper one.

Cliffe had a big advantage in weight and reach, and he was very clever in difficulty in the third round and again later in the fight; but Morgan's experience and his superior in-fighting stood him in good stead, and carried him through to a well-earned victory.

A Good Programme In addition to the main bout, nine amateur contests were staged, and the evening was a very successful one. The programme carried out which reflected credit upon all concerned. The bouts were interesting and clean, the judging beyond criticism, and the crowd orderly. Mr. W. H. Batstone, who promoted the contest, fully deserved the credit given him by Mr. C. H. Dickie, M.P., in a neat speech which he delivered in connection with the prize giving, when cups and medals were awarded to the winners.

The cups won in the boys' boxing competitions at the G.W.V.A. sports on Labor Day were also presented during the evening. Mr. K. P. Duncan, M.P., officiated as time keeper, while Mayor Smythe acted as announcer. Major Glick and Mr. Tom Terry were the judges. Mr. P. Roberts, late featherweight champion of India, was the third man in the ring for seven of the amateur bouts, while Mr. Frank Hiltz refereed the last three, including the Cliffe-Morgan go.

For the dustweight championship of Cowichan, Charlie Stock, fifty-six pounds, won from C. C. Holman, five pounds, after three exciting rounds.

In the eighty-five pound class, there were six contestants. Holman beat J. Warrick; Gordon Gard beat Hugh Baker; Gordon Gard beat Roger Young. In the semi-final round, Holman won from Gard, but in turn a victim to the prowess of Dick Bais.

Full of Thrills The three-round contest between Noddy Magri, of Vancouver, Provincial paperweight champion, and Tommy Best, of Duncan, was full of thrills from start to finish. Best pluckily went in at short notice as a substitute for Albert McNeil, of Ladysmith, who was disabled in training. This contest was declared a draw, although Magri narrowly escaped a knockout in the second frame.

The contest between Robinson, of Courtenay, and Anderson, of Ladysmith, was strenuous. The Courtenay boy started like a champion, and did some wicked swings, which had all kinds of stem behind them. Just before the end of the second round, Robinson landed a right, which sent his opponent to his corner, groggy, and the interval was not sufficient time for him to recover. In the third round, Robinson and his man with a poke which sent him down for a count of nine. A moment later, Robinson's seconds threw in the towel to save their man from needless punishment.

The best bout, and the one which roused the enthusiasm of the audience most, was the one in which Ian Brookbank, of Ladysmith, and Ed Webb, of Nanaimo, in the 140-pound class. Webb appeared to be the bigger and heavier man, and Brookbank's admirers were disappointed that for once he had tackled too big a job. He came back strong in the second, however, and forced the fight, and in the third round, Webb proved himself a game and clever boxer, and both men got a big hand when the going sounded at the end.

THE finals of the first men's annual championship of the Macauley Point Golf Club, were completed on Sunday. The winner of the championship, and therefore the holder for one year of the "James Macauley Cup," presented by the Hudson's Bay Company, is Mr. F. W. Coldwell, who played consistently good golf throughout the competition, being also the medalist for the qualifying round, for which he received a silver medal presented by Mr. C. V. McConnell.

WILSON NETS FIVE

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Among Saturday's noteworthy soccer achievements, outstanding was the extraordinary feat of Andrew Wilson, of Middleboro, the Scottish international centre forward, in scoring all five goals for his side against Notts Forest. This performance has no exact parallel in league records.

In the Oldham-Manchester duel, the Oldham player, Wynne, had the unusual experience of scoring four goals, namely, two for his own side and two against.

A Plucky Loser

The runner-up, Mr. T. Angus, made a good showing in all his matches, and played a plucky game against his opponent in the final. At the conclusion of play the prize for the championship and various other prizes were presented by Mrs. A. H. Wolfenden, the wife of the club president, in a very charming manner. The result of the final was as follows:

Championship—F. Coldwell beat T. Angus, 10 and 2.

First flight—G. R. Florence won from A. Kerr by default.

Second flight—J. V. Meston beat G. Sime, 4 and 2.

Third flight—J. A. Davidson beat Capt. R. H. Port, 5 and 4.

Fourth flight—O. F. Sommer beat V. M. Gordon, 5 and 4.

Ladies' Championship The draw for the ladies' annual championship, Macauley Point Golf Club, is as follows:

First and Second rounds, Miss C. Frost and Miss E. P. Hunter, Miss S. King and Mrs. R. H. Fort, Miss D. Vincent a bye, Mrs. H. B. Mox and Miss E. Edwards, Miss W. E. Holman a bye, Miss M. S. Wednesday League Prepared for Action

Final Arrangements for Starting Play Made at Last Night's Meeting—Five Strong Teams Have Signed Up and First Games Will Be Played Next Week

THE Wednesday Soccer League has cleared decks for action. All preparations were completed for the opening battles on Wednesday, October 17th. A large and enthusiastic reorganization meeting was held in the Y.M.C.A. last night and such was the keenness of the delegates that it was decided not to delay the commencement any later than the date selected, although that means that only two days are left for the rival managers to sign up players and round out their teams.

"We have had a very successful season," said Retiring President William Cull, after calling the meeting to order, "and without doubt we shall repeat, if not surpass, that success this year. The Wednesday Soccer League is now an institution in Victoria. It has passed the probationary period and has become definitely established in popularity. Three additional teams have been added to the roster this season and prospects in general are very bright indeed."

The new teams are the Local Batteries—Krause and Baker, Dagby, Dell and Tobin. At Los Angeles (first game)—Sail Lake R. H. E. 13 14 3 Los Angeles 4 7 3 Batteries—R. McCabe and Peters, Jones, Hughes, Robertson and Baldwin. Second game—R. H. E. Sail Lake 7 10 0 Los Angeles 4 7 3 (Called end of seventh; rain.) Batteries—Myers and Peters; Lyons, Douglas and Rego. At San Francisco—Morning game cancelled; wet grounds. Afternoon game—R. H. E. Sacramento 12 14 2 San Francisco 6 13 4 Batteries—Fitterly, Douglas and Kohler; Scott, Hodge, Stanton and Vargus. At Portland (first game) R. H. E. Vernon 6 11 4 Portland 10 15 0 Batteries—Eckert and Onslow. Second game—R. H. E. Vernon 4 11 3 Portland 7 17 0 Batteries—Tim Childer and Zane; Leverens and Daly.

First Round Draw As a result of the draw for the first round, the Garrison will languish in inactivity with a bye, the Teamsters will play Broad Street at the Royal Athletic Park, and Cranleigh House will meet the Hudson's Bay at Ileson Hill. The first-named are the home teams and will be expected to provide the requisite nets, flags and sawdust; and to see that the grounds are in condition for play. The remainder of the schedule will be drawn up and submitted for approval at a general meeting next Monday night at the Y.M.C.A. at 8 o'clock.

The value of the services of the retiring executive—Mr. Cull, president; Mr. McConnell, vice-president; and Bombardier Thomas, secretary—was signally recognized by the delegates, when the three officials were returned to office unopposed.

In the past, discussion has sometimes arisen over the appointing of referees. The executive were empowered last night to arrange all such matters, and in future, no appeal will be allowed from their decisions.

A committee was appointed to revise the constitution and bring it up to date. It will consist of the executive, together with Mr. Haynes, of the Hudson's Bay, and Mr. Stephens, of the Garrison. Their report will be presented at the Monday night meeting of the league.

UPPLANDS GOLF CLUB HUNTINGS AND MISS MASON WIN MIXED FOURSOMES Three Couples Tied for Second Place—Price and Hepburn Win Men's Competition

Although there were no very low scores turned in in the mixed foursomes competition played at the Uplands Golf Club on Sunday, the competition proved very interesting, with the net scores fairly close. Miss Mason and Huntings proved the winners with a net score of 69½, which gave them a fairly substantial margin of victory over the next couple, three of whom tied for second place, and will play off for the prize.

A. V. Price and H. F. Hepburn were the winners of the men's foursomes with a net of 69. The full scores, gross handicap and net, follow:

How Bobby Jones Became Golf's Greatest Genius

(Copyright, 1923, in U.S. and Great Britain by North American Newspaper Alliance. All rights reserved.)

Below is the second installment of a serial biography of the national open champion whose career between the ages of six and twenty-one has astounded the golfing world. This is a life story of a youth, but interwoven in it is an exposition of many points in his game. This account of struggle and of the highest success among American golfers is written by a golf expert who has followed every stage of Bobby Jones' career from the beginning.

Chapter II—The Mold of Form—"Kittie, the King-Maker"

(By O. B. Keeler.)

It is more or less a burning question among several million golfers where Bobby Jones acquired that beautifully rhythmic swing that in the last three years has been held up all over the world as the glass of fashion in golf. Having seen the open champion as a little boy, plugging around a home-made golf course with a sawed-off cleek—a cleek, of all stubborn clubs—we must perform admit that so far as Bobby's infantile golfing swing is concerned he was utterly untutored and untaught at the time. He just swung. No one showed him anything about it. He saw any golfers playing it was through the fence. His father was just about taking up golf at this time, that is, he was wondering if he, a former ball-player, really were getting old enough to start golf. And Bobby, closing in on his sixth birthday in the mild Southern Winter-time, continued simply to swing as he plugged about the little rugged, home-made course, and betimes heard his father talking about this pestiferous "old man's game." He finally took it up—and then about plans for moving over squarely into the East Lake Club grounds, where there was a cottage for rent right back of the thirteenth green of that era.

And that move was accomplished the next Spring. Bobby then being six years old, and a veteran of something like six months at the old man's game of golf.

And here Bobby Jones, a fragile, tow-headed youngster, came under the spell of a certain stolid, uncommunicative, square-headed little Scotch professional golfer from the famous old golfing town of Carnoustie, the Stewart Maiden, lately come to the club as successor to his brother, Jimmy.

Only His Swing Is Eloquent

"Kittie," Maiden, the members called him from the beginning, he was so thoroughly Caledonian, "Kittie, the King-Maker." It is now, from the crowns that have been gained by his famous pupils, Bobby Jones, Miss Alexa Stirling and Perry Adair.

STEWART MAIDEN, THE MAKER OF CHAMPIONS

Stewart Maiden, the silent Scotch golfer professional who has gained renown as the teacher of Bobby Jones, Miss Alexa Stirling and Perry Adair, has among them won five national championships and ten sectional titles, was born and reared in Carnoustie, a famous little golfing town of Scotland. He came to the Atlanta Athletic Club, the home club of all three of the young champions, in 1917, succeeding his brother Jimmy Maiden.

There, one by one, the three "child wonders" came under his influence. All began their career using substantially the fine, rhythmic swing of Stewart Maiden, and all retain much of his style today. Maiden was professional at East Lake from 1913 when he went to the St. Louis Country Club and remained there until after the national amateur championship played on that course, in 1921. Then he returned to the East Lake Club, in Atlanta, and has been there since.

Maiden's method of teaching probably involves less speech than that of any other golf instructor in America. But he has a singular ability to pick out and correct faults in style and execution. He plays infrequently now, his time being taken up with teaching, but on occasion can produce a fine round of golf, and is in frequent illustration for a pupil he can execute any desired shot with beautiful precision.

"Kittie, the King-Maker," lacking the gift of gab as far as it can be called, but possessing a singularly fluent golfing swing and a peculiar ability almost without words to impart that swing, or at any rate its salient factors, to his pupils.

Now, Bobby Jones did not go at once to taking lessons of Stewart Maiden. There is doubt that he ever took any regular lessons at all, from any teacher. Coaching, certainly, he has had in abundance from Stewart as his game developed and rough spots appeared that needed attention. And to this day Stewart can look at Bobby Jones playing a few practice shots, and off the line a trifle with his irons (for example), and say a low word or two, and presto!—Bobby is himself again.

But there is no room for doubt that Stewart Maiden was the mold of form for Bobby's early golfing method and the foundation for his splendid game of later years. Stewart was the club professional, the arbiter of all games, the greatest golfing man in all the world, to six-year-old Bobby Jones with his sawed-off cleek and the twirling hunger in his little system to be a real golfer with a bag of poise or balance.

clubs and a caddy. And with the natural imitativeness of childhood, Bobby naturally selected Stewart Maiden to imitate.

They Mistake Him for Stewart

To this day Bobby said on the way home from his first great conquest at Inwood, "I can go out on the course and swing exactly like Stewart."

His swing was a peculiarly exact copy of Maiden's at the beginning, later modified to suit his difference in build and some ideas of his own. But he was so accurate a copy that at the age of thirteen, a stocky, well-grown boy playing in his first tournament away from home, at the Rosetuck Country Club in Birmingham, an old friend of Stewart Maiden insisted that Bobby, driving in the distance, was Stewart himself, and would not be convinced to the contrary by Bobby's own father until he had come to close range.

Miss Alexa Stirling, three times national woman champion and generally regarded as the leading feminine golfer in golf, also has Stewart Maiden's swing. In the gallery at Mayfield, where she won the national championship of 1920, was a man from Carnoustie, watching her play from a distant tee.

"I don't know that young woman," said he, "but I can tell you her teacher. He's Stewart Maiden." So the little boy began swinging like Stewart Maiden; compact stance, nearly square; the ball played opposite the left heel; the right hand very firm on the top of the club; the hands held low and extremely close to the legs; feet close together; body erect and set with a peculiar command of balance, that vastly important detail of timing and rhythm.

He's a Natural Mimic

In all the shots I have seen Bobby Jones play, I never yet have seen him swing off balance. His infrequent mistakes, I am prone to believe, arise from something less than a fault of poise or balance.

Bobby was a natural mimic. He could imitate others as well as Stewart, and he gave many a quaint little exhibition for the delight of his father and his father's friends. A pet delineation was on one Judge Broyles, a quick sort of player who liked to carry his own clubs. The judge's finish of a stroke was a divided sort of effort. As soon as the ball was struck he let go of the club with his left hand, reached for the golf bag, and started on his way, his eyes meanwhile riveted on the ball. The tout ensemble was somewhat remarkable, and, as reproduced faithfully by Bobby, it caused great joy in the hearts of all beholders—except Judge Broyles, who never could see anything funny about it.

But Bobby's best imitation was always of Stewart Maiden. That did the trick for Bobby.

CONCLUDING GAMES

In the concluding games of the league season, Brooklyn beat the Giants, 4-1; Pittsburgh beat Cincinnati, 7-1; the Cubs and the Cardinals split a double-header, the former winning the first game, 10-3, and losing the second, 6-3; the Athletics defeated the Yankees, 7-1; Cleveland defeated the White Sox, 9-4, and Detroit won, 7-6, from the Browns.

The American League players during the 1923 season made 444 home runs, compared with 524 last season. National Leaguers had 525 home runs to their credit, five more than last season.

The Big Hitters

Those who closed the season with a dozen homers or more to their credit follow:

American League—Ruth, New York, 41; Williams, St. Louis, 29; Heilmann, Detroit, 18; Hauser, Philadelphia, 17; Speaker, Cleveland, 17; Brower, Cleveland, 16; McManus, St. Louis, 13; Tobin, St. Louis, 13; J. Harris, Boston, 13; Miller, Philadelphia, 12.

National League—Williams, Philadelphia, 41; Fournier, Brooklyn, 21; Miller, Chicago, 20; Meusel, New York, 19; Hornsby, St. Louis, 17; Kelly, New York, 16; Tierney, Philadelphia, 13; Frisch, New York, 12; Friberg, Chicago, 12; Traynor, Pittsburgh, 12; O'Farrell, Chicago, 12.

Ruth Brings His Home Run Total to Forty-One—Speaker Breaks Two-Base Hit Record

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Babe Ruth's forty-first home run, Tris Speaker's fifty-ninth double, the retention of their half-game lead over Cleveland by the Tigers, and the signing of Miller Huggins as manager of the Yankees for another year were the outstanding happenings Sunday as major league baseball brought its end to the 1923 season.

Ruth's homer came in the first inning of the Yankees-Athletics game at the Yankee Stadium, and on the first ball pitched to him by Harry Babcock he whacked it into the right field bleachers and became permanently decked out with Cy Williams for home run honors of the season, each having registered forty-one.

Speaker's fifty-ninth double advanced the world's two-base hit record. Speaker smashed the old record last week and has twice broken his own mark since that time.

Detroit, by means of an eighth-inning rally against St. Louis, held its half-game advantage over Cleveland for second place in the American League. The score was 4-3. Manush doubled, Veach was purposely passed, and Rigney came through with the hit which caused the final score to read: Detroit, 5-3; Cleveland, 3-4.

HOCKEY MAGNATES PREPARE SCHEDULE

Double Series of Interleague Games Will Probably Be Played—Add Variety to Bill of Fare

VANCOUVER, B.C., Oct. 8.—Lloyd Turner left here today on his way home to Calgary after two weeks of hard work drafting, in collaboration with Frank Patrick, a schedule for a double series of interleague games this Winter between the Western Canadian and Pacific Hockey Leagues.

So that the hockey fans travelling involved, preparation of the schedule proved to be a matter of considerable difficulty, but before leaving, Mr. Turner expressed himself as satisfied with the tentative draft which will be submitted to all W. C. H. clubs for their approval before adoption. Turner expressed himself as satisfied that, if any, the schedule would be found necessary to make it appeal to each point on the circuit.

President Patrick, of the P.C.H.A., tonight stated that the Coast loop had agreed to adopt the schedule as it stood.

Under the proposed plan each Coast team would swing round the Pacific league twice during the season, and each Pacific team would make two trips to the Coast. There would be twice as many interleague games as last season, affording the hockey fans a more varied bill of fare.

OAK BAY COUNCIL CONSIDERS ROAD SAFE

Recommendation of Coroner's Jury Respected—Considered as Lacking Danger

An echo of the death of Thorwald Rickard in a motor accident on Beach Drive, Friday night, was heard at the meeting of the Oak Bay Council last night, when, in accordance with Chief Squire's report, the councilors went on record to the effect that the road at the scene of the accident is not the least bit dangerous to a car driven with ordinary care, and that the road surface at this point cannot be considered to have contributed to the accident in any way.

The expression of opinion was in response to a rider to the verdict of the coroner's jury, describing the curve in the road as a danger to the motoring public.

No action was taken in the matter of converting into a park the four acres of ground at the top of Gonzales Hill that reverted to the municipality at the 1923 sale.

A deal was concluded with Mr. Reginald Pease for the purchase of a small piece of land which will enable the municipality to eliminate a curve on Beach Drive between Margate and Orchard Avenues.

Residents who have allowed their fences and garages to encroach upon the property of the municipality will be informed that the Council will countenance their actions if they secure the municipality's permission to so encroach.

Engineer Fowler was instructed to investigate an alleged obnoxious condition of the main sewer outfall adjoining the property of the Oak Bay Golf Club, and Messrs. Pemberton & Son were informed that the Council could not effect any changes in the easement of certain property, as the matter was in the hands of the Court of Revision.

GAME SITUATION IN PROVINCE SERIOUS

Mr. M. B. Jackson, K.C., M.P.P., Issues Warning in Address Before the Gyro

"I am sorry to announce that wild fire-bearing animals of British Columbia are facing serious depletion and almost extinction unless steps are taken to curtail the killing of them," Mr. M. B. Jackson, K.C., M.P.P., chairman of the Game Board, informed the Gyro Club in an address before its weekly luncheon yesterday.

It was a peculiar thing, pointed out the members of the league, that when game was reduced below a certain point it could not recover, and unless steps to conserve the "fire-bearing animals" of the Province were taken immediately this minimum would be reached and passed. It would be necessary and with this the trappers themselves agreed—to close down on trapping of fire-bearing animals for a certain period.

The Game Board, explained Mr. Jackson, was a purely honorary body, receiving no remuneration for its work. He personally had already given six or eight weeks of his time this year in matters pertaining to game protection. He referred to the policy of the Board in establishing game sanctuaries throughout the Province in order to conserve and increase the game. He had just returned from a wonderful trip into the interior of British Columbia.

Commencing at a point about twenty miles above Kamloops there was a great rectangular section of country about 1,000 square miles in extent, which was a perfect paradise, with its plains, sloughs, mountains, glaciers, streamlets, rivers and valleys. This wonderful land would be preserved for the hunter with the camera, but no firearms would be permitted. There game could flourish unhindered.

New Policy Good

The new policy of the Board in moving about from place to place in order to secure firsthand information regarding conditions was working out splendidly, said the speaker.

After dealing with the gyro question, Mr. Jackson took up the subject of citizenship, urging simplicity, sincerity and industry as attributes of character much to be desired. A characteristic of the good citizen was his desire to serve, declared the speaker, and closed with a glimpse of the tasks lying before the people of British Columbia in the development of the Province.

Mr. Harold B. McDonald told the club of the banquet held by the Vancouver Gyro Club on Thursday night for the installation of its officers. Gyros MacDonald and George de la Mothe represented the Victoria club at the function. The former paid tribute to the hospitality of the Vancouver members and told of some of the work which the Mainland club had done.

Fire Prevention

Gyro J. L. Mara spoke on the subject of Fire Prevention Week, pointing out that fire loss in Canada amounted to $1,000 a minute and a life every half hour. He declared that such losses could be prevented if proper precautions were taken. Fire loss touched the pockets of the citizens, he claimed, and went on to tell of the various methods by which fire could be prevented.

Two vocal solos were charmingly rendered by Miss A. H. H. accompanied by Gyro Chris Wade. The Gyro orchestra was enthusiastically applauded for its contributions to the luncheon programme.

It was announced that the Civic Affairs Committee would meet at noon on Thursday at Terry's.

Strong Backing for Promotion Within City, H. Shows Itself Committee to Report

With thirty-three applications for the position of City Comptroller before the City Council last night, the council passed them over to the Finance Committee for recommendation. This action was taken on a five-four vote, the number of the aldermen desiring an immediate ballot, as they stated they wished to place a member of the City Hall staff in the position.

The applications have come not only from various points in British Columbia, but also from other parts of the Dominion and from the United States. Among those seeking the position of City Comptroller are the following four members of the City Hall staff: Acting Comptroller James McL. Mulholland, City Treasurer Edwin C. Smith, Mr. James Fairweather, who is temporarily engaged by the city to assist in assessing, and Mr. Alexander Gardiner, another member of the Assessor's staff.

Montreal in 1887, to celebrate the jubilee of Queen Victoria. There were 576 members on parade. Major J. A. Edwards, now 43 years of age, and Captain P. Matthews, 55 years of age, are present day active members of the Army and Navy Veterans of Canada.

The Association was formed in 1884, its motto is "Shoulder to shoulder," and it was incorporated by Act of Parliament under Dominion charter at Ottawa, September 26, 1917.

The purposes and objects of this Association are defined as follows in the Act of Parliament: (a) To unite fraternally all persons who have served as soldiers or sailors under the British flag; to increase the public influence of veterans by organization; to stimulate the spirit of patriotism in Canada; also to render personally and as a united body what public and personal service lies within their power in the cause of the nation."

LIFE INSURANCE SHOWS INCREASE IN SALES

Canada's Record During Month of August Was 30 Per Cent Higher

Sales of ordinary life insurance in Canada during August of this year were thirty per cent greater than during August, 1922, according to figures just published by the Life Insurance Sales Research Bureau of New York. In August, $31,085,000 of new ordinary life insurance was reported in Canada by fifteen companies having eighty-five per cent of the ordinary life insurance in force in the provinces. Although this is not quite as large a total as in June, when these same companies wrote $31,855,000, the bureau reports that there is usually a slight falling off in sales during the summer months and that in spite of the usual slackening at this season

Considering sales for the year to date instead of the month of August, British Columbia leads the other provinces with a twenty-nine per cent increase over the same eight months of last year. Nova Scotia, Saskatchewan and Ontario, with increases of twenty-five per cent, twenty-one per cent and eighteen per cent, respectively, follow in the order named. For the year to date, all of the provinces show an increase over the eight months of last year, except Alberta, which shows a decrease of nine per cent.

drama, Showing at Dominion, is of the Most Elaborate Type

Love—war—romance—tragedy—
heart—drama—Vienna, old,
gray, history—

The Prater, the famous amusement park of Vienna, so much like the American Coney Island—
Realism and the "Merry-Go-Round" that goes around and around at the back of fate, upsetting human plans, turning worlds topsy-turvy and robbing glory of its gilded blood—

It tells of the fall of splendor enthroned in a nation, of the bitter trials of some of the people of this nation during the recent world war and of some of the features of life before and after the war, in Austria
—but these are shown in support of the love story, a heart-gripping romance of the two social worlds.

Close-Packing, Knock-Out
Mrs. De Wolf Hopper, Hunter Gordon
Constance Bennett, Harry Helen Rowland, Paul McAllister
Montague Love, Barbara Castle, Mrs. D. H. Monaghan
Julia Wayne Gordon, Rod Lefkowitz, Beatrice Wagner

Comedy—Al St. John in "The Alarm"
Discovery Artist, Miss Crawford.
Fox News

It is evident in the close-knit smoothness of the scenes that "Merry-Go-Round" could easily have made a twelve-reel photoplay instead of a ten-reeler, but to avoid the tiresome effect that such lengthy features have on some people it was cut, and the result is wholly gratifying from either standpoint.

In the romantic leading roles Mary Philbin and Norman Kerry head the cast. She is a "discovery" and he an actor of noteworthy achievements, but both are convincingly sincere, and their harmony is attractive. George Mackthorne plays a hunchback character very well suited to his special ability for portrayals that have a keynote of pathos and tragedy.

The Girl of the Story
The girl of the story is a drudge of the Prater, an organ grinder of the whirling, dizzy, round. Her father, her mother, her hunchback friend—all work there. The hero, if he could be called that, since he is more human than the rest, is a nobleman, a proud youth who is honored in life by being the aide of the Emperor Francis Josef.

How this girl and this man could come together would have to be a fairly tale if it weren't for the world war. But many things were brought about by the world war that are stranger than fairy tales.

The love story draws in all these divergent elements and makes the mass a logical whole in one of the smoothest flowing dramas of many seasons.

BUSTER KEATON LEADS
SPORTSMEN OF SCREEN

Plays Three Different Roles in New Metro Picture, "Three Ages," Feature at Capitol

Buster Keaton claims to be the champion film sportsman on the Pacific Coast.

Buster plays three different roles in his Metro picture, "Three Ages," his first big six-reel feature comedy which is now playing at the Capitol Theatre.

He is cast as a matadon hunter in the stone age, as a gladiator in the Roman era and as a ninety-pound quarterback in a slugging football game in the present age. And off the movie lot Buster is captain of his own baseball team which plays championship games around Los Angeles.

In the cast with Buster in "Three Ages" are Margaret Leahy, Wallace
Berry, Lillian Lawrence, Joe Roberts and "Clupit" Morgan. It was directed by Buster Keaton and Eddie Cline from the story by Jean Hayes.
Joe Mitchell and Clyde Bruckman.
It was photographed by William Mc-
Gann and Elgin Leedy, with Fred Gabouri as art director. It is a Joseph M. Schenck presentation through Metro.

bie, Lolo Chelino and Lee Shumway.

PLAYHOUSE The Compton Comedy
THEATRE Co. will this week present "She Stoops to Conquer," one of the best-known old English classical comedies comedies ever staged, by Oliver Goldsmith. It is rated as one of the most perfect examples of stagecraft ever presented and cannot fail to impress all lovers of the classic drama. Although the play ranks so high in the world of English literature, no one need fear a dull moment, as this magnificent comedy provides real mirth-provoking situations and a delightful evening is assured to all.

Ever since Mother Eve imbedded her nearly tooth in the fabled apple humanity has pondered from time to time the age-old problem: "What's Wrong With the Women?"

Now comes a motion picture that sets for itself the same eternal question and comes pretty close to answering it—at least so far as the present high-powered, better-acted, flapper-proof generation of women is concerned.

It is called "What's Wrong With the Women" and was produced in powerfully dramatic sequences by Daniel Carson Goodman and it thrilled and entertained a big audience at the Royal Theatre, where it was shown for the first time yesterday.
It's an Equity picture.

Mr. Goodman, with the facility and understanding of the master storyteller, was in time in getting into the core of his subject. With bold and powerful strokes he rips aside the curtains that hide the whimsical, the whimsical, the whimsical of that dynamo of ever-changing emotions—the Modern Woman. It is in no sense an attack on womanhood. It is in no sense preachy, although in its big treatment may be found a sermon that will shatter deceit and extravagance and weld closer together the bonds of love and human sympathy.

The story, which was written by Mr. Goodman, is a straightforward narrative dealing with the lives of a smart group of men and women in the slanted strata of big town society. Women and men, too, plunge into the maelstrom of life unrestrained. Extravagance, folly, broken hearts and related evils, it won't do to reveal the plot.

The Royal 30-piece orchestra rendered an excellent Music Lovers' Night programme last evening, and the special numbers brought forth unadorned ovation from the large audience. Mr. A. Prescott conducted the orchestra.

VITAL STORY OF DRUG
TRAFFIC TOLD TONIGHT
AT PANTAGES THEATRE

The bill this week at Pantages, opening tonight, in addition to the regular vaudeville numbers, will include a most unusual offering by Miss Lillian Burkhardt.

Miss Burkhardt appears in a melo-drama sketch entitled, "The Straight Dope," which deals with the vital story of the danger of the drug peddler in our midst and his sinister methods. The character of the society woman, who accidentally enters a dope parlor and discovers her son there, allows the writer great scope for her talents, as she quickly changes from a pleading, heart-broken mother, to the simulation of an infamously clever dope peddler, to save her son. Miss Burkhardt makes a very telling speech on the drug menace at the conclusion of her act.

In private life, Miss Burkhardt, in Mrs. Goldsmith, a wealthy club woman of Los Angeles, to whom her salary is no object, who is using the venue of the Pantages circuit, which covers North, South, East and West, and an innumerable clientele, to disseminate information that all fathers, mothers, sons and daughters should know concerning the despi-cable traffic in narcotics.

Miss Burkhardt is booked to speak at the Rotary meeting at noon on Thursday, the first of being "The Stage," and on Friday, arrangements have been made to take the Seattle boat at 4:30 p.m., instead of leaving by the Anacostia ferry in the morning, so that she can address a meeting of the Women's Canadian Club in the early afternoon of that day.
Crowded houses should greet Miss Burkhardt at Pantages this week.

TORONTO, Oct. 8.—It was announced last night that the public will be admitted to the Wednesday morning meeting of the World Brotherhood when Lloyd George will address the gathering.

The Brotherhood Congress will open Tuesday morning when a number of eloquent speakers, including W.

MACY AND BAIRD MAKE SUCCESS WITH SHOW

"Girl in a Million," Crook Story, Reception at Pantages Theatre

A crook play with all its thrilling accompaniments, marvelous escapes of the hero and heroine, amazing situations and stupendous denouement
when the villain is led away safely handed by the detective, is a brief outline of "A Girl in a Million," presented last night at the Pantages Theatre by Macy and Baird, with marked success.

Although a new company to appear in Victoria, Macy and Baird have, through their talented efforts, gained a strong hold on their audiences, and last night's show was well received,
the cast being heartily applauded.
The actors interpreted their respective parts with ability, the play running smoothly from start to finish, while the dramatic situations were worked up to and carried off with striking success.

As the heroine of the play, Miss Jean Rose was both charming and convincing in her role, and was ably assisted by Mr. Howard R. Macy, who appeared as Jim Maynard, a crook, who subsequently turned over a new leaf, declaring that "a crook didn't when love was born"; Mr.
"Spec" Lettice, who took the part of "Flip" Edwards, brought out the lighter comic element of the entertainment most delightfully. Miss Margaret Bronson was very good in the part of Kitty Burns, while Miss Zoe Bates, Messrs. J. P. Baird, P. A.
Dale, Elmer Nordsteth added much to the pleasure of the evening's entertainment. As the villain, Mr. Allan Whistler, in the role of David Burnham, achieved some very fine acting.

During the interval between acts 3 and 4, Mr. Macy announced that on Friday and Saturday next the company will present another of the popular "Toby" plays, "Kentucky Sue," which will undoubtedly make a great hit with admirers of Macy and Baird productions.

Next Monday evening will be Amateur Night at Pantages, when contestants may present any vaudeville turn they choose, and the actors chosen will be engaged to appear the following week between the intervals of the Macy and Baird company's play.

Proposed Plan for Lesser Reparations

Paper Publishes Letter of Mr. Lloyd George Setting Forth Proposal to Former President Wilson

LONDON, Oct. 8.—Much interest was shown today in a hitherto unpublished letter by Right Hon. David Lloyd George on the subject of the interallied debts which has just come to light.

The letter, which was published by The Sunday Express yesterday, was written by Lloyd George under date of August 5, 1920, when he was premier. It was addressed to Woodrow Wilson, who was then president of the United States.

The Express claims that an arrangement was about to be reached whereby the French Government would agree to the scaling down of the German reparations, providing

Great Britain and the United States remitted a great part of France's debts to them.

That the United States Government was ready to accept this plan, says the newspaper, was shown by the fact that the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Austen Chamberlain, and Albert Rathbone, representing the United States treasury department, dropped the negotiations then going on for the reparation payment of a British debt to the United States.

The newspaper argues that Premier Baldwin might have made a similar settlement but that by his arrangement for the refunding of the British debt to the United States he threw away the only weapon he had to persuade France to make a settlement in Europe and also threw away
the possibility of getting much better terms from the United States and the possibility of obtaining part of France's debt to Great Britain.

People of Empire Have Great Estate To Be Developed

LONDON, Oct. 8.—Premier Smuts, of the South African Union, said the foundation stone today for the South African pavilion on the British Empire Exhibition grounds at Wembley, and delivered a speech which was noteworthy as being his first public address since arriving in England to attend the Imperial Conference.

He hopes for the future of South Africa, which had been through an era of great trouble, national and political, such as New Zealand and Canada had not experienced. That was now finished, and South Africa today was a country about whose future none had the slightest doubt.

Premier Smuts described the Empire Exhibition to be held next year as part of a great campaign of self-development which was occurring in the Empire. The Empire was a great state which its people were called upon to develop and hand down to future generations.

Your Own Pearls

Are the finest—pearly teeth
Millions find them by combating film

No pearls which hang about the neck compare with pretty teeth. Don't leave them coated by a dirty film.

Look about you. Note how countless teeth now gleam. Mark what they add to beauty and to charm. Then make this test and learn how people get them.

The cloud is film

You feel on your teeth a viscous film. Under old-way brushing, much of it clings and stays. Soon it becomes discolored, then forms dingy coats. That is why so many teeth lose luster.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Thus film is the greatest enemy of tooth beauty and tooth health.

Dental science, after long research, found ways to combat that film. One disintegrates the film, the other removes it without harmful scouring.

Abilities authorities proved these methods effective. Then a new type tooth paste was created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent.

To the careful, dainty people of some 50 nations this method has brought a new dental era.

Research also proved that soapy tooth pastes had brought undesired results. They reduced the alkalinity of the saliva, reduced its starch digestant. Pepsodent brings just opposite effects. It multiplies the alkalinity, multiplies the starch digestant. And they are Nature's agents for fighting acid and starch deposits.

Watch for 10 days

Watch for ten days the Pepsodent effects. They will amaze and delight you. They will convince you that all in your family should get them every day.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear.

Militant Irishmen Lose Little of Zeal

Passion, Humor and Enthusiasm Still Mark Party Loyal to De Valera—A New Light on Erskine Childers—His Last Message—An Intimate Glimpse of the MacSwiney Family.

(BY DR. EDWARD DE WITT JONES)

CORK, Ireland, Oct. 8.—Republicanism in Ireland is not dead. The Republicans are organized to the smallest detail. They possess a secret service worthy the name and what is more—the spirit of Republicanism is vibrant, persistent and intelligent. The names of Wolf Tone, Robert Emmet and Lord Edward Fitzgerald are names that possess elements of witchery and their mention in political meetings never fails to rouse an audience of Republicans to a high pitch of enthusiasm.

Being a Republican in Ireland just now isn't exactly what it was a few years ago. The Civil War has divided the party that was united and dominant from 1918 to 1920 in Southern Ireland. The Army of Occupation is the strong arm of the Free State Government and its chief business of late has been running down and imprisoning the most active of the "irregulars." Their "chiefs" under arrest, their movements watched and hampered, the Republicans have not bowed the knee nor have they once cried "Enough."

In a third-class railway carriage on my way from Tralee to Macswiney, I fell in with an "irregular" of the peasant type. If he had a single new article of wearing apparel on him it wasn't in sight. His faded blue suit, coarse, heavy shoes, colored shirt, frayed necktie, battered hat and short-stemmed pipe were of one pattern—they were all old and the worse for wear. He might have been anywhere between 40 and 45, but despite his nondescript apparel, his eyes were bright and disposed to twinkle.

Tells of Meeting
We fell into a conversation about the country through which we were passing, and I happened to mention having attended the Free State meeting at Tralee the day before. My fellow traveler fairly snorted.

"You are a Republican, then?"
"I am," he said. "Why, they had to put a regiment of Free State soldiers in citizens clothes and send 'em to that meeting so Cosgrave could have somebody to show 'em after. If you think that was a meeting, I'd like to take you to a place where the crowd and the speaking and the singing would make you think you was back in the old days of Michael Davitt."

"You are a Republican, then?"
The drab, weather-beaten Irishman took a quick look at the two men in the other end of the compartment and lowered his voice.

"I am that; I am a Kerry man, and Republicans are thick in Kerry. I'm for a free Ireland. My father was before me, and my sons are after me. I've a boy 'on the run,' sir, and I've another boy in prison. Haven't heard from him for a long time, and his mother worries about him more than she should. He'll be coming back some of these days, I tell her, and it'll be a grand country when old Ireland's free."

The MacSwiney family
The MacSwiney family symbolizes eloquently the Republican Ireland of 1923. Mary and Annie MacSwiney are interesting personalities quite apart from the fact that they are sisters of Terrence, Lord Mayor of Cork, who gave his life for an Irish Republic at the end of seventy-four days of hunger strike in Brixton Prison, England. Annie is the more unassuming figure, a little severe and harsh and absolutely "unreconstructed." She is not emotional, rather the contrary—cool, logical and unrelenting. Something about Miss Annie made me think of Kipling's acidulous line, "The female of the species is more deadly than the male."

"Do you think the Republicans will ever resort to arms again, Miss Annie?" I inquired.
The unsmiling eyes look straight into my own. The bloodless lips were tightly compressed. Then she replied, "I will not say 'no' to that question, for who can tell what may happen? I can only say I hope it won't be necessary."

Mary MacSwiney is more expansive and human than Annie. She is witty, too, and she laughs heartily. I saw this truly remarkable woman many times and oftenest at the Republican headquarters, 23 Suffolk Street, Dublin. Later I heard her speak in the presence of a crowd that thronged to overflowing the famous Mansion House on Dawson Street.

I had read of "Mary MacSwiney's hysteria," had heard her called "a wild woman" by Free State orators, and I was prepared to see an Amazon, wild-eyed and fanatical in the extreme. Imagine my surprise to meet a courteous, low-spirited, middle-aged woman, becomingly good-looking, exceedingly clever at repartee and keenly intelligent. As a stump speaker, Miss Mary is extra good, in fact, we have few women speakers in America as good as this leader of Irish Republicans. She speaks right on; she is direct, and at times almost motherly. Suddenly she blazes with indignation and a little later she has her audience in uproarious laughter over a wail of wit, or some especially hard hit at a political opponent.

Mary MacSwiney's political creed or confession of faith is characteristic. Her literary style is above reproach. Observe the strong sentences, and remember that the woman who speaks these sentiments has been seven times in prison and was herself a hunger striker in Mountjoy Prison here in Dublin.

Ready to Fight
"I do not want to fight if fighting can be avoided with honor. I am not a soldier in the words of those greater than I and whose faith I also share. With Wolf Tone I say: To break the connection with England, the never-falling source of our political evil, and to assert the independence of my country—these were my objects. To unite the whole people of Ireland, to abolish the memory of all past dissensions, and to substitute the common name of Irishman in place of the denomination of Protestant, Catholic and Dissenter—these were my means."

"With Pearra I deliberately avow myself Irish of one allegiance only, and like him, I know only one definition of Freedom. It is 'Tone's' definition. It is Mitchell's definition. It is Rosa's definition. Let no man blaspheme the Cause that the dead generations of Ireland served by giving it any other name and definition than their name and their definition." "With Terence MacSwiney I answer that 'Freedom is necessary to a soul erect, and Freedom must be had at any cost of suffering.' And with him I declare that the spirit of thought as to the final peace possible with England. 'It will never come while there is any formal link of dependence. The spirit of our manhood will always flame up to resent and resist that link.'"

"Let us make peace with honor even now. Eliminate the King of England from the Irish Constitution and no one will want to fight. But—be must go."

The third MacSwiney woman is such by marriage—Muriel, the young widow of Terrence, who was a Miss Murphy, the daughter of a rich brewer, the one of "Murphy's Famous Stout" advertisement. Mrs. Terrence MacSwiney is demure and prettier, but not nearly so intellectual as the sisters of her late husband. Her appeal is more emotional than theirs, and in a way it complements the logic and cool analysis of the MacSwiney sisters. Then, too, there is something in the very appearance of this widow who is proud to have made so costly a sacrifice for the republic, that is of itself impressive.

Description of Meeting
The Republican meeting of Mansion House was the liveliest and most typically Irish I have attended in the Free State. The meeting was held in the Rouse Room, room adorned with stately and scintillating mirrors. The room was built for royalty, and especially for a notable reception of the tender and the gentle. The features of this meeting left their imprint on my mind. There was fervor, there was humor, and I heard the lit of Irish laughter. It was an order of the meeting was no disturbance, not a single uneasily outburst. The spirit of the speakers was dynamic but not incendiary; militant but not militant. The singing was impressive, particularly the "Soldier's Song," sung softly and reverently:

"Soldiers are we, whose lives are spent in the service of our country. Some have come from the land beyond the wave; Sworn to be free, no more our ancient Ireland Shall shelter the despot of the slave. Tonight we man the Bannan Boathall."

In Erin's cause come woe or weal, And cannon's roar or rifle's peal We'll chant a soldier's song."

Mary MacSwiney was the principal address, a full half hour in length, but there were others, one by an American, who said that the attitude of the Irish hierarchy toward the Republicans was "a throwing of mud in the face of Christ"—a statement which received a full round of applause.

The Republican cause still has a robust vitality, and it possesses what the Free State party seems to lack—passion, humor, and enthusiasm. Little boys and girls with shining eyes and flushed cheeks cheer the speakers, and the high heart dislodged in this last message to her.

His Last Message
"I hope my good name will be cleared in England," he wrote. "I feel that Churchill said about my 'hatred' and 'malice' against England. How well we know it is not true. What have I ever spoken or wrote that qualifies the charge? I die loving England, praying that she may change completely and finally toward Ireland." (N.B. Now I was to meet the widow of another Republican martyr, and a personality of distinction. I visited Mrs. Childers on an afternoon when Dublin weather was divine—a day when the thoughts of executions, bombings and a awful havoc of civil war seemed wholly alien, of other centuries and distant lands.

Erskine Childers, executed in November, 1922, by the Free State Government, was possibly the rarest soul of that inner circle of heroic spirits who died for an Irish Republic. Lesson No. 3

New Recipes for Milk Breads

THE foundation of almost every Canadian meal is bread—"the staff of life," as it has been called for ages—so that it is most essential that everyone who aspires to be a good cook should be able to make several kinds of this important food.

In the making of bread, as in many other kinds of cooking, the use of milk adds both to the quality and nutritive value, and here, again, the richness and convenience of Carnation Milk (made in Canada) are of advantage.

Light bread is given a finer texture and a more delicious flavor when it is made in this way. Try this recipe for Thin Milk diluted in $\frac{1}{2}$ cup water. Sift flour, Graham meal, Indian meal, salt and baking powder together; add the molasses and the Carnation Milk mixed with the water. Beat well, and steam in buttered mould for three or four hours.

Another warm bread quickly prepared and very delicious when properly made is muffins. Try them made by this recipe.

Muffins

$\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon sugar, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 egg, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup water, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup Carnation Milk, 2 teaspoons melted shortening. Mix and sift dry ingredients. Add milk diluted with water to well-beaten egg, and add to dry ingredients, then add the melted shortening. Bake in greased muffin tins from 15 to 25 minutes. This recipe makes ten muffins.

For something different from the ordinary kinds of bread—one that will be especially popular with the children—try this recipe for

Nut Bread

1 teaspoon salt, 4 cups flour, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup sugar, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 3 eggs, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup water, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup English walnuts. Mix and sift dry ingredients. Beat eggs well, add milk diluted with water and mix with dry ingredients. Beat well, add nuts, put into two greased bread pans and bake in a moderate oven 30 to 45 minutes. This recipe makes two loaves.

Questions and Answers

What precautions are taken to keep Carnation Milk pure?—Mrs. R. D. T.

From the time the milk leaves the dairy until the can is finally labelled it is under constant inspection and is subjected to the most rigid tests. Not only must the fresh milk from which it is made measure up to a high standard of quality and cleanliness, but during every stage of the process experts test it continuously to make sure that the evaporating, sealing and sterilizing are all properly done.

One of the most tempting types of warm bread is the biscuit and if you follow the recipe which I give here you should have no trouble in making these to perfection.

Carnation Biscuits

$\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt, 2 cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 2 cups water, 2 cups Carnation Milk. Sift dry ingredients together. Mix in shortening with knife or fingers; add water to one-half inch in thickness, cut and bake in hot oven about 15 minutes. This recipe makes about eight biscuits.

1 cup of white flour, 2 cups Graham flour, 2 cups Indian meal, $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon baking powder, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup molasses, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup Car-

woman bereft of husband by governmental rifle fire on that early November morning. She bears no nation or individual enmity. She is almost beatific in her breathings of goodwill for all peoples.

The memory of her husband's last days and hours is in truth to her as a string of pearls, and she counts them over each one apart, yet without a vengeful phrase, a hateful word, an angry glance. She owns a solemn pride in the fortitude with which he met death, and the high heart dislodged in this last message to her.

"What has such untoward conditions done to his youth," I mused, "is he cynical, fanatical, or worse?" He is in fact none of these things. Erskine Childers, Jr., is such a youth as one might expect to find

In any cultured home in peacetime, only he is that and something more—strong convictions, uncompromising ideals, and a resolution to keep the fires his father helped to light still burning on the altar of a free and united Ireland.

"You are a Republican," I asked. "How could I be anything else," was his instant reply.

"True enough, how could he? I studied the boyish, eager face, and asked a second question. "Do you think war, force, violence, settles anything permanently?"

"Maybe not permanently, but war settles some things" temporarily, don't you think? At any rate it preserves ideals, principles, from going down utterly. There is a better way, a really Christian way to settle all difficulties, but that way hasn't been taken seriously as yet. You Americans won your right to self-determination by arms, didn't you?"

Knows History
Very true! This youth knows history and politics as intimately as our American boys of his age know the names of the famous ball players and prize fighters.

I looked at this rosy-cheeked boy with what must have been frank admiration. He was so wholesome, so full of youthful fervor, so undaunted by anything that had happened. I watched the light gleam into his eyes when he talked of his father, and I observed his thoughtful consideration of the invalid mother. It is good to know that Ireland can grow such a man, even amidst turmoil, bombings and the damnable executions of her rare dreamers, poets and seers.

Severe Earth Tremors Felt at Washington

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Earth tremors, indicating a severe earthquake approximately 5,000 miles from Washington, were recorded Saturday night and early Sunday by the Georgetown University seismograph.

Father Todori, director of the observatory, was unable from the record made to give even the approximate locality of the disturbance, but indicated that it was to the westward of the Pacific.

The tremors continued for two days. They reached their maximum intensity between 9:34 and 11:26 p.m.

REGRET RESIGNATION OF MR. C. G. MACNEIL

Tuberculous Veterans Believe the Sale of Beer in Soldier Clubs Retards Amalgamation

The members of the Victoria Branch of the Tuberculous Veterans' Association deeply regret the announced resignation of Mr. C. G. MacNeil, Dominion Secretary of the Great War Veterans' Association, and chairman of the Dominion Veterans' Alliance. The following is a statement by the publicity committee of the Tuberculous Veterans:

"That immediate action is necessary on the part of all ex-service bodies if the disabled men and women of the Great War are to have their claims properly presented to the authorities, as it will be practically impossible to act without the aid of Dominion headquarters, adequately staffed for administrative purposes, and this cannot be accomplished without financial support.

"A Dominion advocate cannot be expected to give the whole of his time without some source of income to maintain himself and family, and it is a well-known fact that in the local ex-service clubs we find that secretaries, and even presidents, are receiving substantial salaries for work of little or no benefit to ex-service men and dependents; yet Comrade C. G. MacNeil, who has been successful in obtaining justice in thousands of cases, has been compelled to resign his position owing to lack of funds.

"The local branch of the T.V.A. will thoroughly discuss this urgent question at its next meeting, which will be held in their quarters on Monday, October 15, and it is expected that the members will formulate a plan of action by bringing forward suitable recommendations for the approval of other local bodies.

"It is also anticipated that the local branch will endeavor to prepare a resolution with regard to the sale of beer in service clubs for presentation to the Provincial Legislature, as such practice is considered by the majority of ex-service men to be the chief cause of retarding the amalgamation of all veterans' organizations."

URGES SUPREMACY OF PARLIAMENTS

PREMIER MACKENZIE KING CITES CANADA'S ATTITUDE

Holds Dominion Must Act on Decision of Elected Representatives in International Affairs

LONDON, Oct. 8.—Premier Mackenzie King, in his speech to the Imperial Conference this morning, it is understood, indicated questions of international relations such as those between Canada and the United States in which Canada was primarily interested. He traced such developments as the formation of the International Waterways commission, and from this turned to the wider question of a general foreign policy. On this, he stressed the supremacy of the parliaments of the Dominions in determining the action of the Dominions. Premier King did not discuss the Ruhr question.

Premier Bruce of Australia and Premier Massey of New Zealand followed Premier King in addressing the conference, which sat until 2 o'clock. Following this morning's sitting, the Colonial Office communique merely gave the names of the speakers and added that Premier Baldwin had officially welcomed Premier Bruce and Sir Lomer Gouin, Canadian Minister of Justice, to the conference. There was a further intimation that it was questionable if the speeches of the Dominion Premiers will be made available to the press in full, although the matter was not definitely decided.

To What Extent?
How far the representatives of the Dominions concur, or where they differ on the question of general participation in Britain's foreign policy, will not be evident until the discussion closes. Canada's case will be stated.

As the representative of the senior Dominion, Premier Mackenzie King has the first word among the Dominion Premiers. He was accompanied to the conference this morning by both Sir Lomer Gouin and Hon. P. G. Graham, Canadian Minister of Railways and Canals.

While their eyes are turned on the Dominion Premiers in matters of foreign policy, the editors of certain papers are continuing their campaign for tariff preference with increasing activity.

The Morning Post and Daily Express both urge it today. The former believes the time has come when Great Britain can be persuaded "of the necessity for this great and long-delayed reform."

The Express exhorts the Conservative party to extend its annual academic vote in favor of tariff reform to include food taxes. It further observes that Canada would like Great Britain to give her corn, cheese and bacon a preference over American products.

Foreign Policies
LONDON, Oct. 8.—The Imperial Conference opened a discussion today that will be momentous. The tangled history of the Ruhr, the breach of the Entente, Lord Curzon's speech and the bitter rejoinder from France, are before the Dominion

Premiers, and this morning they began to state their views thereon.

"Will the Dominion Premiers endorse Curzon's conclusions that there is nothing to be done beyond waiting events?" the Times asks. It follows the question with an expression of confidence that the conference will decide to lead, not to follow.

The desire that the Dominions should be united with Great Britain in formulating a common foreign policy is finding wide expression here. A brief citation from The London Daily Telegraph will indicate this tendency.

Press Comment
"It is today," says The Telegraph, "an accepted condition of our foreign policy that it is that of all the self-governing states of the Empire, and that in framing it the governments of those states must actively participate. That is the object of the presence of the Dominion Premiers in London today."

How would the Dominions express their joint view of the Empire's foreign policy, presuming they are in agreement on such a course, is a question that is creating speculation in political circles, with these alternatives suggested:

1. Issuance of a joint manifesto in the names of all the Premiers of the Empire and chief delegates, in which the conduct adopted by them regarding the main aspects of European policy would be stated and explained.

2. Dominion representation on British delegations at international conferences following the practice adopted at the peace conference.

CLAIRVOYANT FINDS FISHERMEN'S BODIES
His System Apparently Proves Effective After Search Parties Had Failed to Get Results

LION'S HEAD, Ont., Oct. 8.—During a performance in a Warthon Theatre Friday night, a clairvoyant, claiming to be the seventh son of a seventh son, was asked where the bodies of Captain William Corson and Robert Parker, missing fishermen, could be found. The clairvoyant believed he could locate the bodies by a unique method and came here yesterday when one body was recovered within half an hour.

Removing the centres from nine loaves of bread, the clairvoyant filled the loaves with lime and placed them in a circle on the water where he thought the bodies would be located. It was claimed that when a loaf passed over a body a sort of electrical current would be formed and indicated by the trembling of the bread.

Very soon one of the loaves showed evidence of disturbance. Strapping iron was used and Parker's body was raised. The body of Corson was also located, but could not be brought up.

A government airplane and large parties of Lion's Head residents had searched the waters for two weeks for trace of the missing fishermen, who, on September 24, were engaged in fishing their net when the boat capsized, throwing them into the water.

The clairvoyant claimed this is the 11th body he has located by this method.

Can Europe Hold Together?

(Copyright, 1923, in U.S. and Great Britain by North American Newspaper Alliance. All rights reserved.)

By JOHN F. SINCLAIR

Chapter XXII—(The Last)—America's Stake in Europe

In this concluding chapter of this series, the author makes his own deductions from the facts which he has presented in the previous articles. In his recommendations as to the course of America, Mr. Sinclair speaks for himself as a contributor, and not as spokesman of the newspaper.

Seventeen nations of Europe owe to the Government of the United States a little more than 12,000 millions of dollars. Interest charges alone on this vast sum are piling up at the rate of two million dollars a day. This does not include the amount which the governments and corporations of Europe owe to others in America. This would probably add to the principal another 2,000 millions of dollars.

Here is the money-lending record of the United States Government:

Armenia	13,437,000
Austria	44,220,000
Belgium	4,744,882,000
Czechoslovakia	104,685,000
Estonia	16,685,000
Finland	9,294,000
France	1,770,904,000
Great Britain	4,744,882,000
Greece	15,375,000
Hungary	1,888,000
Italy	1,891,814,000
Latvia	5,776,000
Lithuania	5,728,000
Poland	153,043,000
Rumania	41,412,000
Russia	227,620,000
Slovenia	58,441,000
Yugo-Slavia	13,437,000

Add to these huge totals interest at 5 per cent for fourteen months. That's our Government stake in Europe.

These amounts are so vast, so difficult to grasp, they cannot possibly mean anything concrete to us, except by way of contrast or comparison.

For this vast sum a high school costing $1,000,000 could be built in every one of the 3,000 counties of the United States. Every irrigation project in America now held up for lack of funds could be completed, one million workmen's homes costing $4,000 each could be built and paid for, the bonded debts of every state government in the United States could be paid off, and still the unpayable sum of 3,200 millions of dollars would be returned to the Treasury of the United States. That's our stake in Europe.

What the Debt Would Buy
Perhaps we can better comprehend the interest items on this amount.

The forty-five largest cities in America in 1922 had a school attendance of 2,940,000 pupils. The total cost of these schools, including all salaries, interest on bonds, operation and maintenance, was $222,197,832—our interest charges for 135 days on the amounts these seventeen nations owe the Government of the United States. Such figures then represent the European bookkeeping debt to the United States. The people are therefore faced with one of the most tremendous economic and financial problems ever given to them to meet since they became a nation.

What are we going to do about these debts, the interest of which is piling up at the rate of $4,000 every working minute?

The average man, when asked about this problem, answers about like this: "The Government of the United States owes about 23 billions of dollars in Liberty bonds to its people. With this 23 billions which we get from Europe we will pay off that amount of Liberty bonds down to 11 billions and thereby reduce our taxes." It looks like a simple case of arithmetic, of addition and subtraction. It would at first seem so, but it is not.

Europe can pay this debt only by sending us gold, or its equivalent, which is goods. Can she send us gold? If these nations sent us all their gold they could pay us less than 13 cents for every dollar they owe us. No, gold is impossible. The debt must be paid in goods. That is these nations must send to the United States an excess of goods over imports which they buy from the United States of at least 900 millions of dollars a year, for a period of forty years.

Must Sell to Pay
Let us be very clear about this, for the problem is generally misunderstood. These debts were created in the first instance by America selling goods to Europe. They can be paid only in the same manner—by the European debtors selling as much to America as America has sold to them, plus interest. If we compel Europe to use her export goods to square accounts on debts now owing us, we must understand that Europe cannot, in the very nature of things, use these same exports over again in buying future goods from us. We cannot eat Europe's cake and have it too.

Let me illustrate. In 1922 the United States sold to these seventeen debtor countries of Europe goods to the value of 1,718 millions of dollars and purchased from them 1,300 millions of dollars worth of goods. This shows our debtors were still borrowing money. They had left 1,102 millions of dollars' worth of goods to pay for, before they could pay a cent on this debt. The 1,102 millions of annual interest charges and amortization of the United States Government debt. In a word, if the United States compels these seventeen nations of Europe to settle for these past debts in the face of Europe's present unfavorable balance of trade, as the "pay up" advocates demand, actually America's export trade will dwindle almost to zero. If we insist on payment it will not be consistent or logical or even fair to set about erecting high tariff walls to protect ourselves from such a surplus of goods, for only by admitting such goods can Europe ever hope to pay her debt to us. We must admit the goods and accept the consequences.

Europe is trying hard to cut down her buying from the United States. Her decreasing purchasing power is also a large factor. In 1919 Europe purchased 325 millions of pounds of beef from us and a little less than four millions in 1922. Europe purchased 1,238 millions of pounds of bacon in 1919, but only 350 millions pounds in 1922. The American livestock industry became utterly demoralized, and the value of our livestock dropped in this time $1,611,000,000.

World Markets Bound Up

Let us take the case of the small grain farmer, who raises wheat, oats, barley, rye and flax. Although the American small grain farmer sends abroad only about one-tenth of his total crop, the price in America is determined by the price paid in the world market. A 25-cent drop abroad in all cereal prices in 1923, by reason of the further dwindling of European purchasing power, would result in a loss of $1,100,000,000 to the American small grain farmer.

I want to make this point especially clear. Under such a financial sinking neither Europe or America is helped. America is helped only in the loss is heavy and impressive, still to Europe the loss based on American prices is even more disastrous. Purchasing power is contracting. The American values are dropping. It is a situation where both creditor and debtor nation suffer from the same malady, but not to the same degree.

The inference is therefore clear that if a policy undertaken by the United States results in further decreasing the purchasing power of Europe in such a way that our national income shrinks more than the amount of interest received by us, say 600 million dollars a year, the nation as a whole would lose more than it gained by undertaking such a policy. What advantage is gained if taxes are cut 600 million dollars a year and the national income paying such taxes is reduced two or three times 600 million dollars a year?

In other words, if the present American situation has been caused in a great measure by these two factors of Europe's fast decreasing purchasing power, and from Europe's standpoint, America's fast increasing prices, how much more serious would the problem be in increasing still further goods—value losses by adding this further mountain of debt of from $60 to 1,000 million a year to be paid as we have already shown is the only way that Europe can pay—by an excess of goods sold over goods purchased from us?

Exports of United States Fall
In 1920 the total export and import business of the United States totaled 13,342 millions of dollars. It went down to 10,170 millions of dollars in 1921 and dwindled to 6,379 millions in 1922. The record for 1923 is expected to be worse.

Business is slowing down. Farmers and livestock men have as a result been ruined by the hundreds of thousands—foreclosures, bankruptcies, suicides. The disease of Europe has spread to America. The manufacturer will be next to suffer. He cannot keep up on the present level with the world market slipping away. Production is low now, but it will continue to get lower and lower, until, forced by stern necessity, America will call a world's economic conference which will not adjourn until reparations, war debts, military expenses and the trade barriers of the world are readjusted. We have much to lose, but a great deal more to gain.

It is not a political League of Nations that Europe needs; it is not a Court of Arbitration either. It is an economic United States of Europe that she needs, and must have. Cut away tariff barriers, cut away military expenses, cut away the impossible debt charges, restore the wrecked international machine for trade and goodwill, and the average man in the world, now so discouraged, would feel the effects immediately. That to me is the all-important next step.

I cannot close this series of articles without saying a word to that American who believes we ought to leave European affairs alone and let her work out her own problems. True, we can probably readjust ourselves, and after a generation of intense hardship and terrible suffering, place a Chinese tariff wall about ourselves so high and powerful that we

Canadian Press Directors Confronted With Problem in View of Termination of Federal Grant

WINNIPEG, Oct. 8.—What is to be the future scope of the Canadian Press, the co-operative news-gathering and distributing association of the daily newspaper publishers of Canada?

In view of the approaching withdrawal of the government grant of $50,000 a year, made for the purpose of enabling it to carry on a news service by leased wires from coast to coast, can the association carry on without this material help, or break up again into sectional organizations, as was the case before the grant was first made in 1917?

These were the questions confronting the Board of Directors at its annual meeting here today. The unanimous decision reached was that the Canadian Press must at all costs continue its national functions, and that for this purpose the vital connecting link of leased wires between east and west, Ottawa and Winnipeg, must be maintained.

The management presented a report with this end in view, whereby members of Ontario and Quebec would co-operate with members of the Prairie section in continuing to lease their Ottawa-Winnipeg wires at a cost of about $30,000 a year, hitherto met out of the government's grant. The management, however, sees no possibility, under present economic conditions, of maintaining leased wires over the other two natural "gaps" hitherto also covered by the government grant, namely, Montreal-Halifax, for the benefit of Maritime newspaper members, and Calgary-Vancouver, for the benefit of British Columbia members.

Under the reorganization of news services, rendered necessary as from April 1 next, the management is reluctantly forced to recommend that these sections of leased wire mileage be dropped, thus destroying the free flow of news across the Dominion and giving a much attenuated news service, in particular of Canadian and British news, to the Maritime and Coast newspapers.

Should, however, these sections determine to shoulder the considerable extra cost involved, then Ontario and Quebec members, under the plan submitted by the management, co-operate with the Prairie section, namely, by contributing to the cost of these leased wire units the amount that otherwise must be expended for bringing inward to Ontario and Quebec a limited service of Maritime or Western Canadian news over commercial wires from Winnipeg, Halifax or Vancouver as the case might be.

Communes Death Penalties

PARIS, Oct. 8.—President Millerand has signed a decree commuting to life imprisonment the death sentence imposed on seven Germans by a court-martial at Mayence, June 21 last. The men were convicted of sabotage in the area occupied by the French.

Stuffing them with indigestible foods may please their appetites, but it does not build perfect, robust bodies. There is more real muscle-building material in Shredded Wheat Biscuit than in potatoes, eggs or mushy porridges—and the crispness of the shreds of baked wheat encourages thorough chewing, which means good digestion and sound teeth. Shredded Wheat Biscuit contains just enough bran to prevent that disease-breeding bane of all childhood—constipation. It is an all-day food, delicious for breakfast, for lunch, for dinner.

HERRING FISHING IS DISAPPOINTING

Inspectors Return From North and Report Poor Catches—Big Demand From Orient Shown

NANAIMO, Oct. 1.—Messrs. A. Wilson and A. McKinnon, Government inspectors of fish curing and packing, returned to the city on Saturday from an official tour of the Northern fisheries, including Prince Rupert and Alaska points.

The herring fishery industry of the North has been most disappointing this year, both as to quantity and quality, according to the inspectors. As a result, of the poor catches from these waters, herring should, they say, command a good price in the American market this fall. Regarding the Oriental market, they believed the demand would be strong, and that prices would exceed those of previous years. Inspector Wilson stated that information had been received from the Orient to the effect that the demand from now on will be practically unlimited, both for herring and salmon, provided they are properly prepared to suit the Oriental taste, that is dry-salted. Not only is the Oriental market clamoring for Canadian fish, but owing to the poor catch in the North this year the American market will be open for a large amount of Canadian cured fish.

Regarding the reopening of Departure Bay, near here, to herring fishing, Inspector Wilson was emphatic in his belief that as far as seine nets were concerned, Departure Bay should be kept closed. As to the case of gill nets, Mr. Wilson was not opposed to this method of fishing, under proper regulations. He pointed out that both Departure Bay and Nanaimo Harbor were natural spawning grounds for herring, and as long as they were properly protected, the herring will visit these places to spawn. In past, he said, seine nets had been used, and regulations as to the spawning season had been neglected. Besides this when the catches had been extra heavy, many tons of fish had been dumped back into the water. This meant that no fish would return to water, where fish had been caught and dumped back into the spawning grounds.

DEMONSTRATION OF SPINNING GIVEN

Shawnigan Lake Women's Institute Enjoys Visit From Mrs. Dennis Harris—Business Meeting

SHAWNIGAN LAKE, Oct. 1.—Mrs. Dennis Harris gave a most interesting demonstration of wool carding and spinning at the Monday meeting of the Shawnigan Lake Women's Institute on Thursday, at which there was a large attendance of members and friends. The whole process to the finished cloth was explained and the members were shown how to card and spin the wool into skeins ready for knitting or weaving. Mrs. Harris brought with her a very large assortment of beautiful materials and finished garments such as home-spun suitings, lugs, knitted dresses, shawls, sweaters, etc., and the beauty of these and their durability has aroused a spirit of emulation on the part of some of the members, and it is fully expected spinning wheels will soon be humming merrily in Shawnigan homes.

Preceding the demonstration, a business meeting was held, at which much business was transacted, principally pertaining to the forthcoming Arts and Crafts exhibition to be held on November 7 at Shawnigan Lake. The tea hostesses for the afternoon were Mesdames Graham, Griffin and Medland.

PORT ALBERNI NEWS
PORT ALBERNI, Oct. 1.—The city of Port Alberni has applied for $5,700 of the new Dominion Government conversion loan as a sinking fund investment, and the City of Alberni has applied for $1,900 of the loan for similar purposes.

The City of Port Alberni municipal tax sale, which was being adjourned from day to day during this week, closes today. A few parcels of land were purchased, but the demand was not keen.

A new play shed is being erected by the school trustees on the public school grounds at Eighth Avenue, and the contract for the work has been let to Mr. D. W. Warnock.

A further adjournment until Wednesday next has been taken in the hearing of the charge against George Banks of shooting J. McDaniels on September 12, owing to McDaniels being still incapable of giving evidence. The case has been adjourned from time to time in order to hear the evidence of the wounded man.

The Alberni Girl Guides will hold a dance in Clarke's Hall, Alberni, on Thanksgiving Day, for the purpose of raising funds for the association. A bungalow is being erected on the corner of Kingsway and Mar Street by Mr. R. T. Broad, and will be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Broad at the end of October.

Mr. Oscar Baithe has formed a company to be known as the Two River Lumber Company, and will operate a mill in the Alberni valley. The annual harvest festival will be held tomorrow in St. John's Church, Alberni, both at morning and evening services, and at a children's service in the afternoon. The church has been suitably decorated, and members of St. Alban's Church choir will assist in the choral items at both services. The Rev. G. Arthur Bagshaw, vicar, will officiate.

ORPHANS' TAG DAY

NANAIMO, Oct. 1.—The Ladies' Auxiliary of St. Ann's Convent on Saturday raised the sum of four hundred and ninety-one dollars and seventy-one cents at a "tag" held on the streets, the proceeds of which will be devoted in aid of the orphans of the convent. At the present time there are no less than forty inmates in the institution having no relatives, and being entirely dependent upon the convent for their maintenance.

NANAIMO TRUSTEE RESIGNS

Chairman of School Board Indignant at Trustee Resignation—Accused by Fellow-Members

NANAIMO, Oct. 1.—Trustee Thomas Hodgson, of the School Board, has tendered his resignation to the chairman of the board, Mr. John Shaw, owing to the action of the board in disapproving of a resolution which they had previously given favorable consideration.

The resolution referred to was one in reference to the signing of a moral pledge by pupils attending public schools. The board had previously gone on record in favor of the principle involved and Mr. Hodgson elected as a delegate to the forthcoming Buncan convention, where the resolution was to be considered. Mr. Hodgson feels if the preamble of the resolution was objectionable to certain members of the board, this could have been stated at the time. The board going to the length of repudiating the whole question.

STOLEN MOTORS

NANAIMO, Oct. 1.—A short time ago, a Ford truck belonging to Messrs. Ford & Co. of this city, was stolen from Front Street, and was recovered in Victoria three days ago. On the same date the local police were notified that a Ford car had been stolen from Victoria, a car without numbers, but an otherwise adequate description. On Saturday evening, Chief of City Police J. Shier, saw a car which apparently answered to the description, apparently abandoned near the Millstream bridge. Upon further investigation it was found to be the car wanted by the Victoria police. The vehicle was in bad shape mechanically and had to be towed to the city police station, where it now awaits its owner.

HOLD UP JAIL AND RELEASE BANDIT

JAY, Okla., Oct. 1.—Five unknown men held up the county jail here last night and released Ed. Lockhart, notorious bandit, after they locked Jack Carey, jailer, and Perry Arthur, merchant, visiting at the jail, in a cell.

The bandits escaped in an automobile. The actual holdup was committed by a youth not more than eighteen years old. The other men mentioned themselves about the jail to fight off any resistance.

ADVERTISERS WANT NEWSPAPER SPACE

PUBLICITY OF DAILY PRESS EVER IN DEMAND

Business Men Find Uses of Journalism Essential to Creation of Great Undertakings

Newspaper advertising is unlikely to suffer any loss in volume, according to well-known authorities who utilize the columns of the press in this and other countries, to make more widely known their wares, says a writer in The Montreal Gazette. Lord Leverhulme reckons that most of the associated companies with which he is connected have been built up by a large expenditure on advertising. Henry Ford believes in shared advertising, and in Montreal there is no more practical advocate than Mr. Theodore Morgan, president of the retail advertising section of the Advertising Clubs of the World.

Instinct With Romance

There are certain "names" which are instinct with the romance and growth of trade, round which has grown a wealth of romantic tradition; and which reach the supreme test of immortality and are made the subject of affectionate humor in our vaudeville halls. Beecham's Pills and other sorts of pills; this and that as the other tonic; "Day & Martin's," "Hearty Ford," and an unending procession of "bon mots" found in advertising columns of the leading newspapers. Those who read the works of Dickens and Hood, George Eliot and Carlyle, will recall the references to "Day & Martin's." The importance of publicity is recognized, publicity being a curious and healthy development familiar to modern industrialism, the science and necessity for which have never been so widely appreciated as they are today. It was a fashion once to lament the ubiquity of the advertiser. Today, however, even the voice of the aesthete is stifled as he notes the artistic care and skill that are lavished on an advertisement, as indeed it sometimes is—a picture for the Royal Academy. Publicity indicates the pre-existing spirit of competition, and competition is the surest of all guarantees of the worth of each article on the market. "Expenditure in advertising," says a national advertiser, "we write out from profits; we have never capitalized any expenditure on advertising; in one year the amount written out on revenue for advertising, repairs and renewals and depreciation by our parent and associated companies totalled $15,000,000."

The Prince of Wales, who has never been under the dominion of conventional ideas, told an audience at an academy banquet "that in the business and working community the artistic ideal is very much alive, and only needs an outlet for its expression." Quite so; that judgment is undoubtedly according to evidence. And no one who has studied the strides made by the leading advertising writers of the world, studying the social life of the time, and the general aspirations and movements of thought which are displayed in the development of taste and changing conditions, will dispute that there is nowadays a wide dissemination of real art in advertising. The first purpose of the posters on the boards is to interest him who runs, and the quickest and surest means of appealing to the mind is a picture. That was discovered almost as soon as the growing density of population and the improvement of printing processes made advertisement by large posters practicable. Enlightened advertisers nowadays are agreed that artistic quality has its practical value; they do not despise their public. They believe that a skilfully drawn up advertisement will attract much more attention than a carelessly conceived one, and that the man in the street and the woman in the home will put more faith in a commodity which is advertised artistically than by something blatantly insistent, the reason being, to be quite candid, that they have had their reward—and who will deny that they deserved it? When Millais' picture, "Rubeens," was bought for $11,000 to be reproduced as an advertisement, a good deal of ink was shed to protest that art was being degraded to base uses. That contention seems ludicrous enough now. The work of other Victorian painters of fame was used by advertisers everywhere. During the war we saw the great masterpieces of the past reproduced to commend this or that patriotic exhortation to the million. The picture galleries of the hoardings surround us on all sides and are within the reach of all, and indeed from a study of their masterpieces there may come a wider and keener appreciation of art. Indeed, so far as advertising in its many forms is concerned, it has become an enterprise which has grown to a power only less than that of the medium through which principally it does business. These mediums are in the main the newspapers and magazines of the country. Publishers and advertising men have worked in a harmony which has brought unheard-of success to both. Never could flourish without the other.

Bigger Newspapers

The receipts from advertising have made it possible to print bigger and more worthy newspapers and magazines. Mediums of great circulation have added dignity and dollars to the advertising man's calling.

Both have served the public far more perhaps than most readers realize. Modern advertising has risen to the dignity of a profession of the first rank. It is honest and informative. It has laid the sure financial foundation for great enterprises beyond number. It is all very well to say that the man who makes anything well and offers it for sale at a fair price will succeed. Perhaps he will, if he is a good business man; but without advertising his success will be merely local. His will not be the great plant that gives employment to thousands; his will not be the product that is a household word in the mouths of the nation's buyers and from the consumer's standpoint without advertising to acquaint them with his wares, there will be millions who will never have the opportunity to purchase what they want and what he has to sell. Experience goes to prove very definitely that the place of advertising in the present economic system is thoroughly well established, and it seems impossible that there can be any permanent curtailment of its volume. The "artist" whose work is displayed by great circulation to the million has entrusted to him an influence over the taste of the people. He is worthily proving himself deserving of that trust, and year by year the art of the advertisement in newspapers and on hoardings is of a higher and finer quality. The moral is obvious—advertise—discreetly and continuously.

ACTIVE TRADING IN BONDS A FEATURE

New York Stocks Feel Effect of Professional Selling of Industrial Railway Shares in Demand

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Activity and strength of railroad mortgages, particularly low-priced issues, was the outstanding feature of trading in bonds. Prices in other parts of the list improved somewhat under the stimulus of railway rally.

Aside from further depression of the first Liberty 4½'s, active United States Government bonds held relatively steady. There was some buying of European bonds during the forenoon but most of the foreign issues sagged in dull trading.

Prices lost ground in today's relatively active stock market. Heavy selling of speculative industrial shares, which registered net losses of one to nearly four points, brought to a halt a promising upward movement in railroad shares, many of which advanced one to two points before yielding to the general selling pressure.

The buying of railroad shares was based not only on high current earnings, but on speculative expectations of some favorable merger and dividend developments in some of the leading shares.

Call money opened at 4½ per cent, advanced to 5 per cent and then to 5½. Time money market was quiet.

Some thirty-day loans were made at 5½ per cent, but the bulk of business was for ninety days at 5½.

Foreign exchange trading was quiet but firm. Demand for dollars advanced 5-8 of a cent to 48.55, and French francs gained nearly ten points at 5.93½. German marks were back at twelve cents a hundred.
